

Blake Cooper Griffin

Blake Cooper Griffin is an American teen heartthrob who has starred in hit television shows like 90210, Disney Channel's JESSIE and NCIS: Los Angeles, among many other productions. The South Carolina native graduated from the School of Drama at the North Carolina School of the Arts, where he studied acting and then moved to California to pursue his career in show business. One of Griffin's most recent works to hit theatres was Love Is All You Need, a modern twist on Romeo & Juliette in a universe where heterosexual relationships are viewed as taboo. Griffin's character, Bill Bradley, is an antagonist to co-stars Brian Evigan and Tyler Blackburn. Despite playing the role of a bully in the film, Griffin is very much against it and works closely with an anti-bullying campaign, Boo2Bullying.

Griffin has been rumored to be in a celebrity relationship with his longtime friend Emily Osment. The celebrity couple have been spotted being very close in the last few months, but have yet to confirm a relationship. In Griffin's own words, "Everyone has a desire to be loved, and we should treat that with respect." Such wise relationship advice will definitely help the young star regardless of who he is dating, and his romantic sentiments are sure to make his fans swoon!
