The venue is a very important piece of your wedding puzzle! Check out these tips straight from Cupid to help you figure out where to exchange your vows:

1. Finalize your bottom line: Before you settle down on your location, it's important to have a budget. Talk with your partner about how much you're willing to spend, and make sure you have some wiggle room for overages. 2. Pick your date: Picking the date of your big day is another determining factor when deciding where your wedding will be. There should be some synchrony between the two! If you've always dreamed of a beach wedding, it's probably best for a summer date. This will also help give the venue coordinators out when you go to book the location; they can't help you out if you don't have a day in mind!

3. Think about your needs: Having a rough estimate of how many guests you plan on inviting is a smart thing to consider. If a venue has a maximum capacity of 200 people, that doesn't necessarily mean it'll fit 200 people comfortably! Additionally, you should also have an idea of how you intend on using your spaces. If you want your ceremony and reception to be in the same place, make sure there's enough space for those things to happen!
