In celebrity couple news, pregnancy isn't keeping Sophie Turner from protesting racism with her hubby, Joe Jonas. How do you know you've found a partner with values that align with your own?

Cupid's Advice:

Finding "The One" is always going to be a long process, but finding someone who shares similar values as yours is especially difficult to find. If you're wondering if you and your partner have similar beliefs and ethics, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Just simply ask: Don't be afraid to ask your partner how they feel about current events, politics, and social issues. It shouldn't be an interrogation session, but just you just casually asking your partner a question. This is so much easier than trying to figure out on your own, and you're bound to get a more real and authentic answer.

2. Are they just as excited as you are?: Whatever makes you excited when it comes to your values, whether it's protesting, donating, or a post on Instagram, should make your partner feel the same way. Typically, if you both feel the same way about something, you'll both want to help. On the side, the things that make you angry or upset in society, should make them feel the same way.

3. Do you both see eye to eye on the simple things?: If you two are disagreeing on something simple in the grand scheme of things, then you probably don't have similar ethics and values. Pay attention to the small things you may be bickering about and take a birds eye view to it. You may be able to see your partner's values more clearly.
