What are some special ways to celebrate your anniversary?

Cupid's Advice:

Anniversaries can get monotonous and routine after several years, though here are some different ways to celebrate them:

- 1. Take a class: Instead of doing the routine and traditional anniversary dinner and gift exchange, take a class together. Try a kickboxing class or a baking class; just do something different that you can do together.
- 2. Cook for each other: Have your partner make dinner for the two of you or make dinner for you and your partner. Instead of going out for dinner, have a nice evening in with food cooked by you.

3. Start a tradition: Do something original and start a tradition that the two of you can do every time you celebrate an anniversary. For example, write each other little love notes or start a memory box.
