By Louisa Gonzales

LeAnn Rimes and Eddie Cibrian have some fun in the sun vacationing in Hawaii. Rimes, 31, showed off her amazing and strikingly fit body while prancing around the beach and ocean with her hubby on Super Bowl Sunday, February 2nd. According to UsMagazine.com the singing starlet and her lover left to Honolulu on February 1st, based off a tweet she posted that night. The next day Rimes, posted a “loveey dovey” picture of herself in the embrace of her husband on the beach, looking relaxed and all smiles.

How can travel help keep the spark alive in your relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

After you have been a relationship for a long time, things can start feel a little stale or boring. This is especially common after couples have set up a routine and are comfortable it, but a passionate relationship needs more than that to keep things interesting. To help keep the spark alive in your relationship, try traveling. Cupid shares some advice on how it could be beneficial to keeping your romance strong:

1. It can be a new adventure: Going some place where you both have never been or have wanted to go to, could be a fun trip to experience together. Planning the trip and figuring out where you want to go can be part of the adventure and excitement. Maybe going on your dream vacation and getting away, and shaking up your normal routine can be just what your relationship needed to keep the flames going. Keeping things fresh while you're dating, means trying something new and keeping your romantic mate on their toes.

2. It can give you some much needed alone time together: Finding time to spend alone together can be difficult. Sometimes life keeps you both busy and a part because of certain things going on in your life, whether it's your jobs, children, etc., it can be hard to squeeze in time to spend with your beau. Going on vacation can give you a break from everything and give you the alone time you have been craving. Couples need some private time, because it's good to focus on just your relationship and what you need to keep the passion alive.

3. It can bring back the laughter and excitement in your relationship: After you have settled into a relationship for a while things like stress can plague the both of you with worry, because things change and maybe your relationship isn't what it use to be when you first got together. Try going on vacation and you can leave all your issues about your normal life behind and instead focus on each other, letting loose, being happy and having an amazing time. There's so much you can do and places to see on your trip you won't have time to focus on all your problems.
