What are some vintage touches you can put on your wedding day?

Cupid's Advice:

A bride is said to have something new, borrowed and blue on her special day, but it is also fun to have something old.

Cupid has some suggestions for you to check this wedding tradition off of your list:

1. Table toppers: Add something old to your table arrangement to spark interest in guests while waiting for dinner or taking a break from the dance floor. Perhaps vintage vinyl covers underneath your flowers, or bound books that are filled with love stories or adventures like the one you are about to begin.

2. Picture perfect: Reach out to all your friends and family that will be in attendance and invite them to do some digging for wedding pictures from generations past. You can post them during cocktail hour or at the reception just to add a romantic touch that will include the whole party.

3. Sweet selection: Bring back some of the classic candies from your childhood or as far back as you can find them. Items like candy cigarettes or candy buttons for something old and something extra sweet.
