By April Littleton

How do you know when it's time to give your ex a second chance?

Cupid's Advice:

Lately, you've been hanging out around town with a certain ex of yours. You can't quite figure out what it is about this person, but you find yourself reconsidering the possibility of you two being an item again. Would getting back together be a mistake or a decision you'll never regret? Cupid can help:

1. Acceptance: If you've already accepted what happened between the two of you in the past, you might be ready to start fresh. You can't reminisce over the old times. You have to acknowledge what went wrong in your relationship and have the ability to move on from it. If you're thinking about becoming a couple again, there's no need to hold on to any anger or guilt. You want to start things off positive. Don't pick up the relationship where it left off. The two of you won't last if you continue to make the same mistakes.

2. Forgiveness: Accepting the situation that happened between you and your ex won't happen if you don't forgive each other first. Giving each other a second chance won't work out if the two of you are still blaming each other for whatever went wrong. Instead, work toward holding yourself accountable for what happened and try to let go of all bad feelings.

3. Communicate: You need to be able to express how you're feeling to your old flame. You're thinking about getting back together? Make sure they're aware of that. Your ex might have unresolved feelings toward you as well and may be afraid to speak up first. Communication is key in a good relationship. Start things off right by having a genuine conversation.

What are some ways to tell your partner something difficult?

Cupid's Advice:

Sometimes it's hard to tell your loved one something important depending on how they usually react to surprising news. The more difficult the situation is, the harder your partner may take it. Unresolved issues can escalate into a fight, so whatever the problem is, don't keep quiet. Cupid is here to help:

1. Practice: Before you bring the issue up with your partner, it's best to prepare what you want to say first. If you're nervous or unsure of how to bring the subject up, this tactic might help you. Practice in front of the mirror or ask one of your friends to sit in as your love.

2. Don't get defensive: When you do tell your significant other the bad news, try not to place any blame where it doesn't belong. It may be hard for you to do so, but consider your partner's feelings in the situation. Be kind while still remaining honest. Both of you need to be responsible for whatever is going on in the relationship. One of you shouldn't feel worse than the other.

3. Write it down: Sometimes the best way to say something is by not saying anything at all. If you don't have the heart to tell your loved one bad news vocally, try writing it down instead. Write down all of your feelings in a letter and give it to your partner when you feel ready.

McGowan told People last November that sloppy kisses are her dating deal-breaker. “That’s the worst,” she said. “You could find the hottest guy on the planet and if he’s a bad kisser, it just doesn’t work.”

What are some dating deal breakers?

Cupid's Advice:

There are certain traits that will have you running for the hills. Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Lack of honesty: Want to keep a relationship strong and growing? You need to make sure you do not lie about major things. We all tell little white lies, and even though they may be annoying, they won't totally break the deal. But, don't lie about things such as relationship status, medical history, children, or a criminal record if you want to make things work. Remember, honesty goes a long way.

2. Jealousy: Jealousy can turn from cute to bad very soon. In the beginning of a relationship joking about leaving your partner for someone else, or calling several times to say hello seems okay. But when your partner starts checking your phone or stopping by your place unannounced things might become dangerous. Don't let jealousy ruin something that could be great, so make sure you trust your partner because if you don't things can go sideways quickly.

3. Not having your own life: When you're in a relationship and your partner is your best friend it is one of the greatest feelings in the world. You have someone to spend lazy days with or have someone to help you through hard times, but be sure to maintain a relationship with your own group of friends. It's good to be friends and go out with your partners group of friends, but sometimes it is very important to go out with your own group of friends and then try meeting up after. Time apart only makes the heart grow fonder.

How do you announce your new relationship to family and friends?

Cupid's Advice:

Being in a new relationship is an exciting time in your life, but how do you deal with the anxiety of telling your friends and family about the new relationship? Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Parents: Visit your parents in person if you can, if not pick up the phone and call. Announcing that you are in a new relationship to your parents can be the scariest announcement of them all, but if they show support and are happy for you, you will feel less anxious about the new relationship.

2. Close friends and family: Try to plan a dinner party. This is an easy, exciting, fun way to get the news out there. Also, it gives your friends and family a chance to meet your new partner.

3. Outsiders: For co-workers and friends you haven't been in contact with in a while aren't as important as your close family and friends. But if you want to announce your new relationship put it on Facebook and show them how happy and excited you are to be in a new relationship.

How do you start dating after a long-term relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Your last long-term relationship didn't go as planned and you've spent some time thinking about what you really want in a romance. You've stopped moping around the house, your appetite is back and you're feeling energized. Have you starting thinking about dating again? Do you already have your eye on someone new? Cupid has some tips:

1. Don't rush: It's great that you're finally over your old flame, but don't go out every night with the sole purpose of finding your next "true love." Rushing into another relationship will only cause trouble for you and whoever you have your eye on. Instead, go out on a few casual dates – keep the situation light and fun. Just enjoy the fact that you are able to spend time with another person without thinking of your ex. Besides, the best romances happen when you least expect them.

2. Hang out with friends: While you were coming to terms with your breakup, you might have lost touch with some of your friends. Call them up for a night on the town. If you feel like dancing, go to the hottest club you know. If you prefer to do some catching up with your buddies, go out to dinner at a place all of you will love. You never know, while you're making up for lost time, your soulmate may be just around the corner.

3. Don't settle: Just because you're single doesn't mean you have to cling to whoever comes your way. Keep your options open. If the next person you date isn't really what you're looking for in a partner, break things off before it gets too serious. Dating is all about meeting new people, so test the waters a little. Don't settle for the next person just because you think you won't be able to find anyone better.

According to the source, Cox feels more comfortable discussing her relationship with Van Holt now that her ex-husband, David Arquette, has found new love in girlfriend, Christina McLarty.

What are some reasons to keep your relationship under wraps at first?

Cupid's Advice:

Honesty is the best policy ... most of the time. Sometimes though, it really is better to keep your relationship from family and friends for a period of time. Cupid is here to help you recognize if you're in such a position:

1. You're unsure about the relationship: If you don't really know what kind of relationship you're involved in, you might want to put off inviting him or her to meet your parents.

2. You anticipate disapproval: If you're worried that your friends and family won't approve of the gender, race or religion of your partner, it's understandable to want to put off announcing your relationship until you and your partner are on more solid ground. Just remember that this can only go on for so long. Sooner or later, for better or for worse, you're going to have to introduce your partner and face the consequences.

3. There's been a tragedy: If your family has suffered a loss, then it's probably best to defer your announcement to a later date. Not only do you want to avoid seeming insensitive to your loved ones' grief, you probably don't want your family to associate your partner with a period of mourning.

I want to probably be married at some

What are some ways to announce your relationship to family and friends?

Cupid's Advice:

Introducing your new girlfriend or boyfriend to the people in your life can be intimidating. Cupid has some ideas:

1. Show your partner off: Invite your friends to meet your new beau somewhere where his or her talent's really shine. For example, if your new partner is bilingual, you might consider inviting your friends to a restaurant where your partner can show off his or her linguistic skills by ordering in another language.

2. Avoid dinners: Advice #1 set aside, if you are particularly nervous about what your friends might think, it might be best not to stage the introduction at a meal. While it is the traditional setting for such get-togethers, eating is a stationary activity and so there is little to distract you from awkward pauses and failed attempts at humor if your friends don't take to your partner right away.

3. Skype: If distance or hectic schedules separate you from friends and family, go ahead and announce your relationship via Skype. It's far more intimate than a phone call or Facebook because it offers your friends and family to opportunity to both see and talk to your new partner.

How do you know when it's time to move on from a past relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

It's reasonable to go through a grieving period after the end of a relationship. Eventually, though, you have to move on. How do you know when you're ready? Cupid is here to help:

1. You've readjusted to single life: Strange as it may sound, it's probably best to wait until you're reaccustomed to single-living before you jump into another relationship. As wonderful as romance can be, it's important to not become so dependent on it that you're incapable of living life on your own.

2. You really are over it: If you're still crying yourself to sleep every night, whispering your ex's name in the darkness, then you're not ready for another relationship. You are simply not emotionally prepared to invest in another person yet. Take some time to heal. There really is no rush.

3. You've reaccessed your priorities: You probably changed a bit (or a lot) during your relationship. Your goals, priorities and interests may have changed. What you were looking for in a partner the last time you were single may no longer be what you want or need. Consider this before getting back in the game.

How do you know when it's time to move on from an on-off relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

You can only put up with an on-again-off-again relationship for so long. Eventually, you have to decide whether or not to just move on. Cupid has some advice:

1. The situation isn't improving: If you keep breaking up over the same issues, then chances are those problems are not going away- ever. If these aren't flaws that you can live with, then you need to break things off now.

2. You're attracted to someone else: If you've noticed someone else who you think could offer you a more stable relationship, that might be a sign to end things with your current partner.

3. You're unhappy: You don't need a long, articulate excuse to justify ending your relationship. If being with your on-off partner isn't making you feel good, then that's validation enough to call it quits.

How do you know when it's time to move on from a past relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Although breakups are painful and often times take some time to get over, there's a point at which you need to move on and make yourself happy. Cupid has some advice:

1. No chance of reconciliation: At the end of the day, if you're not going to get back together, you need to move on. Clinging to the hope of reconciliation may be comforting, but it's not healthy.

2. Your partner has moved on: Your partner can serve as a good litmus to see how long the recovery process should last. If he or she has started seeing other people, it's probably time for you to as well.

3. You're not happy: Sometimes it really is that simple. If your attachment to your ex is making you unhappy, then it's time to let go and move on.

What are some ways to keep rumors about your relationship at bay?

Cupid's Advice:

When you first start a relationship, you don't really know what the outcome of it might be and you certainly don't want rumors to ruin it. To keep this from happening, Cupid has some advice:

1.Keep it offline: Keep your relationship off social media. Take it from Ellen and Alex; one little photo of the two started a huge commotion. Don't make yourself look guilty.

2.Lock it: Put a password in your cell phone and computer.

This way you do not have to change your new partner's name or allow others to see their messages.

3. Act the same: When in the public eye be sure to act like you would as if you didn't have a new love interest, you would be surprised just how quickly people pick up on things.

How do you let your crush know you're into him or her?

Cupid's Advice:

When it comes to confronting your crush about your feelings, there is very fine line between being too passive and being too direct. Cupid is here to help you find a middle ground:

1. Drop hints: Incorporate the topic of romance into a conversation and see how your crush responds. Subtly is absolutely key here, but this is a simple, non-confrontational tactic to determine whether or not your relationship has any future.

2. Use non-verbal communication: Try sitting a little closer to your crush during your next conversation, or maintaining eye contact a little longer than usual and see if your crush reciprocates these mild advances or not. Once again, subtly is important here as too much body language can come across as either embarrassing or creepy.

3. Be honest: Unless you want to end up like Eponine from Les Misérables, you're eventually going to have to take a leap of faith and confess your feelings. It may be scary but if you don't, then your relationship will never be anything more than a fantasy.

What are some ways to debut a new relationship to family and friends?

Cupid's Advice:

It can be intimidating to introduce your new boyfriend or girlfriend to friends and family. Cupid has some ideas to help:

1. Make an event out of it: Invite your beau to join you and your friends for a night out. The mutual activity will generate casual conversation and ease nerves.

2. Don't put it off: It's difficult to determine when to open up about your relationship, but try not to wait too long. After a while, folks will begin to wonder if you have something to hide.

3. Don't build him/her up: Let your family and friends come to their own conclusion about your significant other. Jabbering on about how great he or she is will only make you seem desperate for approval.

When is it the right time to start dating someone new after a recent breakup?

Cupid's Advice:

Getting over a breakup can be rough, especially when you're faced with the option of getting back in the dating pool. People move on at different speeds. Some can get back in the game in a matter of weeks, while others take months to fully feel OK with the idea of giving their heart away again. Ultimately, if and when you decide to date again is entirely up to you. To help make the decision a little easier, Cupid has some tips:

1. Mentally ready: Have you played around with the idea of moving on? If it hasn't even crossed your mind yet, then it's not the right time to let someone into your life. Don't rush yourself into dating someone new when your head is still filled with memories of your ex. Getting into a relationship you're not ready for will just make matters worse for you and your potential beau.

2. Emotionally ready: Have you stopped doodling your ex's name all over your notebook? If you have, it's safe to say you're ready to open yourself up to new love and possibilities. Do you still get emotional every time you hear "your song" on the radio? If you still tear up when that song plays and every little thing reminds you of your former boo, you still need time to heal.

3. You've met someone: If you have already met someone who completely takes your mind off of your former flame, this may be a small sign that you are ready to start dating again. If you find yourself thinking more about the new guy than your ex, you might want to consider taking things to the next level.

What are some ways to celebrate new love?

Cupid's Advice:

When love is in the air it's important to celebrate it with you partner. Cupid has some advice about how to do so:

1. Take a cooking class: Nothing is more attractive than a guy who can cook. Sign up for a class together so you can take turns wowing each other in the kitchen throughout the course of your relationship.

2. Volunteer together: Celebrating love is more than just celebrating with you and your partner. Give back to those less fortunate than you while spending some quality time with your lover.

3. Get cheesy: This is the time to pull out all the stops and get really sappy. If you've reached the love stage then it's clear that you both view the relationship as more than just a fling. Don't be afraid to do little things to show your partner you care such as sending them flowers, including them in your Facebook profile picture, and introducing them to your family.

What are some ways to announce your relationship to family and friends?

Cupid's Advice:

Announcing that you are involved with another person is an inevitable part of being in a relationship but it can also be nerve-racking. Cupid has some advice for how to make it easier:

Don't over think it: It's important that you let your friends and family know that you are dating someone but try to keep things in perspective. Keep it calm and casual. You're announcing your relationship, not your engagement.

Do it together: It might be less intimidating if your partner is with you when you make the announcement.

It's your relationship: Of course, you want the people in your life to approve of your new partner. At the end of the day, though, you are the one in the relationship. As long as your relationship is healthy and loving, it doesn't really matter what anyone else thinks.

How do you know when it's time to move on from a past relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Knowing when to move on from a past relationship is a complicated and confusing process to work through. You may still have feelings for your ex, you may be lonely, or you may want them back. Whatever the circumstance, there comes a time when you need to move on with your life. Here are some tips:

1. New relationship: It is essential to move on from a past relationship if you are currently in a new relationship. Thinking, or obsessing over your ex, and ex-relationship is not in any sense healthy. Nor will it positively affect the relationship you're currently in. Drop your ex if you now have a different significant other by your side.

2. Health: If your health has declined because of your past relationship, it is necessary to move on. It is not beneficial to stick around with your past relationship if you are physically and emotionally suffering from it. So pick your self up, and move on. Throw away their belongings, get rid of the haunting thoughts lingering in your mind, and create a better healthier life for yourself.

3. Happiness: Are you completely dissatisfied with your life because of your ex and your past relationship? Are you miserable inside? Do you constantly watch Netflix and have at least three gallons of ice cream in your freezer? You are unhappy. Move on from your relationship and focus on yourself. Get your life together, gather your thoughts, and focus on finding happiness.

How do you keep your relationship away from prying eyes?

Cupid's Advice:

It is not necessary for the rest of the world to be in your business. Cupid has some advice:

1. Communication: When you are in a relationship, you need to talk with your partner of who you want to talk to, what you want to talk about, and the secrecy of your relationship. If you want eyes all over your relationship, talk about your relationship to everyone. If you don't want you or your mate to talk about your business, make sure you talk about it.

2. Discreteness: It is easy to keep your relationship away from others if you keep your partnership on the down low. Like Johnny Depp and all of his relationships, keep your business to yourself only. No one else needs to know about your fights, relationship status, or love. You and your mate are the only ones who need to worry and talk about your relationship.

3. Happiness: If you want to keep people away from your relationship, act happy as anything. Even if you and your beau are not exactly happy, play it off as you are. People are more likely to pry into your relationship if they know that you and your partner are having problems. So put on a smile and it will ward off any unwanted eyes.

What are some ways to keep past relationships from affecting your current one?

Cupid’s Advice:

Keeping your past relationships from your current one is a skill you should acquire if you don’t have it already. Many problems can arise if you let your past baggage interfere with your current relationship. Of course this is challenging to do, but it is necessary. Cupid has some more advice on this:

1. Comparisons: You do not, and I repeat, do not want to compare your ex to your current mate. You will get inside your head and think of all the things your ex was better than your current partner at. You should not compare your ex to anyone, especially your partner now. This is a main way to keep your past relationship from affecting your current relationship.

2. Live in the now: It is not healthy nor acceptable to look back on your past and attempt to live in it. It is over ladies and gentleman, and now time to move on and get going with your life. Live in the now, live with your current partner and ignore any temptations to think about the past relationships. The more you live in the now, the less you are to think about all your past relationships.

3. Leave baggage: Leave your baggage from the past to the side of the road as you continue on with your current relationship. Yes, it happened. However, it does not matter anymore because you are with someone new. Someone you should spend all your time on. Not spending your time on thinking “what ifs” and how things could of been different. The past is the past, and so is your baggage. Move on.
