In celebrity break-up news, split proceedings are still ongoing with

Kelly Clarkson and her soon-to-be ex husband Brandon Blackstock. What are some ways to keep the divorce process from affecting your kids?

Cupid's Advice:

Going through the divorce process can be extremely stressful, and it can be even more difficult to navigate for the kids involved. If you're looking for some ways to keep the divorce process from affecting your kids, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Keep the legal talk to a minimum: When you're going through the legal process of a divorce, try not to let your kids hear too much about this. You will have to be honest about new living situations and rules, but they don't need to know all the details of the custody battle and legal ramifications. This will only add to their stress and sadness.

2. Stick to their routines: Another important factor in keeping your kids from being affected by the divorce process is to minimize disruptions to their routines as much as possible. You don't want them to feel like too much has changed, so try to maintain a sense of stability for them. This will keep them from feeling like their whole life has been uprooted because of the divorce.

3. Don't talk negatively about your ex: Even though it may be tempting, talking negatively about your ex in front of your children may only confuse them. You don't want your relationship issues with your ex to carry into their own relationship. Your children still deserve a good relationship with both of their parents, so try to refrain from blaming or bad mouthing your ex in front of them.

1. Don't spend too much time talking about it: When you first start dating someone, the last thing they want to do is talk about their ex. It also could potentially upset your partner if you are constantly talking about this person from their past.

Cupid's Advice:

Although infidelity is oftentimes a deal-breaker, it is possible to work through the problem and regain trust. If you're trying to rebuild trust in your relationship, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Be willing to put the work in: Working through rebuilding trust will be a difficult journey, so make sure you're up for the task. Be honest with yourself if this is something you can work through and commit to it. Expect that it may be a long road, but it will be worth it in the end.

2. Ask for what you need: When you're trying to rebuild trust, it's important to make sure you're honest about what you need. 3. Focus on the future rather than the past: One thing that will always make rebuilding trust difficult is reliving the past. If you make the decision to forgive your partner and move on, it's best to stick to that. Avoid bringing up the past and rehashing old problems. Instead, focus on the future and what you and your partner can do to better your relationship from now on.

In celebrity news, Cardi B and Offset may be having second thoughts about their split. How do you know when your relationship is truly over?

Cupid's Advice:

It can be hard to determine when a relationship has officially run its course, and even harder to let go when you two share a long past or children. If you are looking for ways to determine if your relationship is truly over, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. You're not yourself: It can be difficult to determine just how much a failing relationship is affecting your life. If you find yourself getting tired or irritated in situations that have nothing to do with your current relationship, the emotions can still be coming from this source of stress. Take a moment to assess your current state of mind and see if relationship drama is carrying into other areas of your life.

2. You've split many times before: Sometimes you truly need to break-up with someone to understand just how much they mean to you. In some cases, a temporary break can lead to a more solid relationship in the future. However, if you have split multiple times with your current partner, or have started taking breaks more frequently, it may be a sign that your relationship is coming to an end.

3. You've spoken with professionals: Many people turn to relationship counselors when they are experiencing trouble with their partner to find new ways to problem-solve. If these new communication methods or techniques aren't helping to repair your relationship, it might be time to consider breaking up. Relationship counselors will also sometimes recommend splitting from your partner if they feel your relationship is irreparable.

soon-to-be ex partner?

Cupid's Advice:

Ending a relationship is never fun, but sometimes it is the only way to move forward with your own life. If you are looking for some ways to break the news to your soon-to-be ex partner, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. In person: The most respectful way to end a relationship with someone else is to have a conversation in person. Whether it is a newly formed relationship that you don't see working long term, or a relationship that has lasted years, the other person still deserves to be present for the conversation. This will allow the two of you to discuss the break-up without too much getting lost in the translation of technology.

2. Video chat: If distance is a factor in the relationship, or you truly cannot bring yourself to meet with your soon-to-be ex in person, video chats are a good alternative. This will allow you to break to news while still being able to see their face and register their emotions. While this option isn't as good as physically meeting up with someone, it is more respectful than a phone call or text.

3. Over the phone: As a last resort, break-ups can be done over the phone. If this is the route you chose to take when ending things with your partner, be sure to pick a time that allows for both of you to have a full conversation rather than calling while one of you is at work. While phone calls are far from the best option in terms of ending a relationship, they are still more respectful than sending a text or not telling your partner at all.

Cupid's Advice:

Among the many challenges people face following a break-up, rebuilding your life and finances are some of the most difficult. If you are looking for some ways to get back on the right track following a break-up, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Scale down: Whether it is downsizing where you're living or canceling a few memberships/subscriptions, scaling down might be necessary following a financially dependent break-up. Don't be disheartened by the need to cut back in a few areas after a relationship ends. Scaling down is only temporary, and these novelties can be added back into your life once you're on your feet again.

eventually lead to opportunities to honor their life. If you are looking for some ways to honor the life of a loved one after they pass away, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Talk about them: It seems simple, but often after losing a loved one, we refrain from bringing up their name. Those closest to you will always be happy to hear about your favorite memories with the loved one you lost.
