Cupid's Advice

Relationships can be very demanding and overwhelming sometimes. If you're feeling trapped or suffocated in a relationship and you're wondering what to do, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Be honest: If you're having concerns about being suffocated in a relationship, the first thing to do is to be honest with your partner about it. Tell them that this type of relationship isn't working for you and that you're not happy. Your partner may be able to change their behavior and cater to your needs so that the relationship is more suitable for what you want.

2. Set boundaries: If your partner is on board to make a change in your relationship, it's important to set boundaries. Tell them exactly what behaviors are okay and which ones aren't. Dedicate some time to having individual space and time for yourself to help with the suffocating feeling. If your partner is able to make these changes effectively, it may show that there is hope for your relationship to be less suffocating.

3. Cut it loose: If you're able to work on a relationship with your partner, it can help with feeling less suffocated, but if you are feeling trapped in your relationship, that may mean something is seriously wrong. If you're not completely happy and for some reason feel like you can't get out of your relationship, then it is important that you cut it loose. Keeping your break-up private can be beneficial in quite a few ways. If you're wondering what some of the benefits of keeping the details of your break-up private are, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. It shows respect for each other: If you choose to keep the details of your break-up private, it shows that you still want to be a respectful person toward your ex. 2. It prevents others from casting judgment: If you are willing to tell others all the intimate details of your break-up, you also give them the power to comment or judge your choice to break-up. If you are not willing to listen to someone else's opinion or judgements on you and your ex's choice to end things, it may be best to refrain from giving all of the details out freely.

If you are looking for the best ways to go about breaking things off with your partner, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Address the issues: Before you even get to the point of breaking up, it is important to discuss the issues you are having within the relationship with your partner. 2. One of the main ways to show respect is to go about the break-up in a private setting and preferably in person. If distance is an issue, try to make the conversation as personable as possible by making a phone call rather than sending a text.

In celebrity break-up news, Kelly Clarkson is having a tough time amid her divorce from Brandon Blackstock. What are some ways to keep the drama at bay during a split?

Cupid's Advice:

One of the unfortunate added side effects that often follows a break-up is drama. Despite all the efforts we may make, it is normal to be faced with rumors or awkward questions once a relationship ends. If you are looking for ways to keep the drama at bay during a split, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Keep it neutral: Negative words seem to travel the quickest during the time of a break-up, and are likely to make their way back to your ex partner if you share mutual friends. While it is necessary to process your break-up with others, avoiding an excessive amount of negativity around the situation can help alleviate some of the drama. Try to keep statements as neutral as possible when speaking with your mutual friends to avoid anything accidentally being taken out of context.

2. Focus on yourself: Drama is often started when we are focusing on another person. Instead of worrying about if your ex partner is going on dates or talking to someone else, focus on what you are doing post break-up. If you refuse to give this budding drama the time of day by prioritizing yourself, then it will not be able to grow!

3. Find an outlet: Just as Clarkson did through her music, finding an outlet to help you process your feelings can help avoid some unnecessary drama. Once you have a better handle on how you are truly feeling, then it can be easier to address any questions without feeling like you will be stirring up drama.

In celebrity break-up news, Victoria and Chris split due to location. What do you do if you're in a long distance relationship and can't agree on a place to live together eventually?

Cupid's Advice:

Distance can be one of the most difficult factors of a relationship to navigate. Whether someone is a long car ride away or only accessible by plane, the challenge of seeing each other can have a toll on the relationship. If you are looking for ways to overcome the challenges of distance as a couple, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Meet in the middle: One of the main reasons people do not want to uproot their life and move is because they are familiar with their current surroundings. It can be difficult to convince a person to leave their family and friends and move to a completely new place where they only know one person. But if both partners are willing to meet someplace in the middle, it would allow both of them to remain closer to home and to each other.

2. Continue to travel: If the impending distance does not need to be resolved right away, then continue your current travel methods. Circumstances and priorities may change after a period of time, and the two of you may eventually reach a point of agreement on where to finally settle down together.

3. Be honest with yourself: If you and your partner have had multiple conversations about the distance and there has been no compromise on either side, it might be time to consider the alternative of breaking-up. Breaking-up does not mean that the relationship failed, it simply means that the two people involved are progressing in different directions. In this case it may be two different geographical locations.
