Cupid's Advice:

Having a child can be a large adjustment for any relationship, especially one that is relatively new. If you are looking for some ways to prepare a newer relationship for a baby, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Balance responsibility: There is a lot of planning and preparation that comes with expecting a child. Be sure that these responsibilities are balanced between you and your partner. While one of you may be responsible for getting the nursery ready, the other may take on the task of baby-proofing the kitchen. Balancing these types of responsibilities is a great way to get both of you involved and excited about the child you are having.

2. Discuss expectations: Having a child can drastically change the dynamic of a relationship, so discussing future expectations is a must. Topics such as child care plans, living situations, and the future of your relationship are important to have early on to avoid conflict later. If you and your partner have different expectations, find ways to work through them and compromise for the benefit of your future child.

3. Continue relationship growth: Even though you may be focused on preparing for your child, it is still important to prioritize the growth of your relationship. Continue to go on dates and spend time together that does not revolve around child-preparation activities. This will show your partner that you view them as equally important to your future child and get them excited about becoming a family!
