Cupid's Advice:

Broken trust can be devastating to a relationship, especially when infidelity is involved. If seeking to continue a relationship where trust was broken, proceed with caution and care. Cupid is here to help you navigate this delicate situation:

1. Take note: Sometimes in a relationship, one person isn't even aware they have broken their partner's trust. Take note that we all have different ideas and expectations of monogamy. Were you or your partner clear on what you wanted out of this relationship? Is broken trust a repeated offense? Taking notes will help you figure out what you expect out of a relationship and determine if your values align with your partner's.

2. Talk it out: Communication is key in any relationship. Though it may be difficult to speak about what hurt your relationship, it is necessary to come to an understanding. Not talking about exactly what broke you or your partner's trust is a disservice to both of you. It will not make either of you feel better about the situation. In order for you and your partner to feel secure in the relationship again, you and your partner need to understand the gravity of your actions.

3. Further your bond: For trust to be re-established in a relationship, you must focus on your connection. Doing activities that promote bonding may help relight a lost spark and remind you both why you chose to be together in the first place. Being with the one you love should not be a miserable experience, so focusing on enjoying each other's company again is the best way to get through this difficult time.
