

Jessica Simpson Says She Could Get Married in Sweats Right Now

Although it seems that Jessica Simpson has been more consistent with her gym regimen in anticipation of her wedding to Eric Johnson, Simpson denies the allegations, according to UsMagazine.com. “Yes, I am working out, but why is that worth any sorta press? I always take care of myself,” Simpson wrote on her Twitter page Thursday, adding, “Eric and I could get married right now in sweats!”

Why is your wedding day so important?

Cupid’s Advice:

There are a handful of defining moments in your life, and your wedding is definitely one of them. Cupid has some reasons why your wedding day is so important:

1. You've been dreaming about it your whole life: Your dreams of a perfect man/woman and your big day are two things you imagine all your life, and the day it all comes true makes it one of the most memorable days of your life.

2. Sharing your love: Your wedding is the day you get to celebrate your love with not only your significant other, but with everyone else important in your life.

3. Beginning of your new life: The day you get married is the day your new life with your now husband/wife begins.