Cupid's Advice:

At some point in time, you'll end up thinking of someone you know more often than you used to. Eventually you'll realize that your frequent musings are more than the friendly kind. When you discover you've developed a crush, it can be intimidating to move forward with a relationship. For this reason, let Cupid be your guide on getting your crush to notice you:

1. Be a detective: Before you declare your newfound infatuation, it might be best if you do some investigating. Ask mutual friends if your crush has mentioned you, or look closely at your interactions with your crush. You might be able to find out if they feel the same way by snooping around a bit.

2. Make it known: If you think your crush likes you back, then make a move. Your crush might not even realize you're attracted to them, so either tell your crush outright how you feel or make really obvious hints. Don't miss out on an opportunity to turn your relationship into something more just because you're afraid of rejection.

3. Get together: This can either be in the form of a date or a regular hang out. If you want your crush to see you as more than a friend, then you need to spend time with them. Free up your schedule and make plans to be together. After being around each other so much, your crush may consider entering a more romantic setting.
