The weather is heating up and so is the fashion world this season. What are the hottest fashion trends coming off the catwalk that you can use to freshen up your style this spring?

1. Grand graphic tees: Keep this springtime season sensational by making a splash with a graphic tee that tells the world exactly how you feel. With looks from designers and labels like Maison Margiela and Coach utilizing this deceptively simple form of casual fashion, it's time to stock up on graphic tees as the new staple of your every day wardrobe. Pair with some ripped jeans and sandals for some casual, on-the-go style or stick to a short mini skirt and tall heeled boots for a fancier take on a comfortable style.

2. Fabulous florals: While it may not be a shocking turn of events, florals are making a come back for the warmer springtime weather. If you're looking to shake up your flower-power style for a more grown up look this spring, try showing some skin with a fashionably low plunging neckline or keep things cool with a barely-there floral bralette. Long floral skirts in both louder orange colors and cooler violet shades will also be a must-have this season.

or adding some star-power to a casual jacket, metallic are the newest fashionable way of catching eyes and turning heads. Experiment with new shiny shades this season to stay ahead of the fashion curve and keep yourself looking like a star.

4. On trend and off the shoulder: Add a little flirty fabulousness to your look this year with a trend that's blowing up the red carpets. Look for shirts and dresses that show a little skin this season, or at least a little shoulder. With designers such as Moschino, Rodarte and Mugler proving that this terrific trend is the next must-have look for all fashionable ladies out there, it's time to make sure you're flaunting your shoulders with all the rest of the fashion-forward. This off the shoulder elegance will add some class to any outfit, and keep you cool and camera-ready this spring.
