1. Know your own worth: This tip is especially important for women going through a break-up or divorce, as feelings of resignation and desperation can cloud your perception of yourself. "When we own our value, we start to get clear on what it is that we're looking for, and then, we become the chooser," Benrubi explains. "And that gives us a lot of power." It's also important to build your self-confidence back up before you start dating again.

2. Trust yourself: Increase your ability to trust yourself by connecting with your intuition. "Our head can really play tricks on us," the relationship expert says. But our intuition lives in our body, so dig deep and think about how certain things make you feel. Each person will have their own ways of understanding their intuition and how their body responds to a yes and a no. For instance, to get clear on your no's, think about a recent ex and how he or she makes your body feel.

Always remember that your intuition can't point you in the wrong direction.

3. Recognize when a man is emotionally unavailable: There are certain behaviors to look out for: He doesn't follow-up or communicate between dates; he's dismissive; he's not interested in learning more about you. Don't ignore these red flags! Instead, address them with him; doing so will help you determine if he's truly capable of fulfilling your needs in a relationship. "Watch a man's actions; don't listen to his words," Oshima adds.
