Cupid's Advice:

The celebrity news about Heath Ledger's death had us all heartbroken, as if the teenage version of ourselves had been his wife. Dealing with our own losses are even more difficult, a battle that is both exhausting and daunting. When you've lost everything, how do you move forward? Cupid's Pulse has taken some love advice from Michelle Williams:

1. Focus on what matters: Matilda, Williams and Ledger's daughter, grounded the single mother in what mattered: Williams had to move forward in order to raise her. You and your lost loved one may not have had kids, but there was some sort of legacy left behind. Honoring someone's memory through what mattered to the both of you can ground you in the present, help you accept the loss, and start healing. Whether it's children, hiking in Peru, or building birdhouses, there is some way to stay busy and move forward while honoring your loved one.

2. Let go of expectations: Like Williams, we all have expectations of love. When our partner dies, our perception of love and the world shifts drastically. Sometimes, we lose hope. Sometimes, we hold onto something false. Don't expect to find anyone like the person you had; they were one of a kind, after all, but realize that there is still something and someone special out there for when you're ready.

3. Fight for your support network: No matter whether you're ready for love or not, having a support network is critical. Williams kept Ledger's family around for a long time. In more recent years, a decade after her husband's death, she has friends her fight for her solitude and privacy amongst the glaringly nosey celebrity world. Find people who will fight for you when you don't have the strength to do it for yourself.
