The current Bachelorette believes that being sexually attracted to your future partner is an important part of a relationship. While being a devout Christian, this reality tv star believes that her faith should not come into question when in a relationship. “I have had sex. And Jesus still loves me,” Brown said in this season’s trailer.

In celebrity news, sexual chemistry is clearly important to current Bachelorette Hannah Brown. What are some signs of sexual chemistry to be on the lookout for with your new crush or partner?

Cupid’s Advice:

Sexual chemistry is a key part of any relationship, and it is important to figure out if you and your partner have that spark early on. Here are some of Cupid’s tips on how to see if you and your new partner have that spark of sexual chemistry:

1. Making eye contact feels comfortable: While nerves can come into play, being able to keep eye contact with your partner is an important part of sexual chemistry. Eye contact lets you know that they are actively listening to you, and that they want to be there with you.

2. Body language: Eye contact and body language go hand in hand. If your partner is angling themselves toward you and not shying away, it is a good sign that sexual chemistry is there, and they are feeling that spark.

3. Follow your instincts: You know that phrase, “Trust your gut?” It really works! If you have an initial instinct about holding your partner’s hand, follow through! If they don’t reciprocate, you know the spark isn’t there. Remember, consent is key in any relationship. If you’re unsure about how your partner will respond, don’t be afraid to ask! This way you can work out anything that may need to be said, and move on in your relationship.
