Cupid’s Advice:

It’s easy to stay inside your current social circle. Depending on where you live and where you work, that social circle might only be filled with people that look like you. It’s important to put yourself out there whenever trying to find a new partner, so why not put yourself into more diverse spaces? If you’re not sure where to start, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Start volunteering: Find a cause you’re passionate about and volunteer at a local organization. Volunteering brings different people together for a common passion. Not only will you meet new people but you already know you have something in common!

2. Attend community events: It’s easy to talk to the same people in your community, but there are plenty of events in your town that will help you connect with new people. There’s more to your community than just checking out the farmer's market every so often.

3. Take time to learn: There are plenty of opportunities to learn about different cultures. There are bound to be cultural events in nearby towns and local colleges. It's not POC's responsibility to educate you on their issues! If you're interested in dating outside your race, you should be knowledgeable about your future partner's culture.
