In a recent episode of the Bachelor Happy Hour podcast, Kufrin said, "All I can say right now is that I don't know ... about my relationship with Garrett at this point." The reality TV star initially spoke out about Yrigoyen's post, which included a lengthy statement that said he "couldn't sit back and not support" his "many friends and family in law enforcement." Kufrin initially condemned the post, but she didn't think it was "meant in a malicious way." On the podcast, she apologizes to Rachel Lindsay, the franchise's only black Bachelorette, for her initial response, saying, "That conversation deserved my complete, undivided attention. It deserved much more care and thoughtfulness on my end."

In celebrity news, Bachelorette couple Becca and Garrett may not be living happily ever after. What do you do if you discover a difference in morals between yourself and your partner?

Cupid's Advice:

You and your partner won't always see eye-to-eye, but there are some things that are harder to compromise on. If you've recently realized you and your partner have different moral values and don't know how to approach that, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Understand where they're coming from: It's easier to understand your partner's opinions if you understand why they think that way. Consider how they grew up: heir family, their neighborhood, their education. Have productive conversations with your partner to better understand their values.

2. Find common ground: Even if you and your partner are disagreeing about a topic overall, there is bound to be something you agree on. Try to focus on these agreements and don't force each other to change. You're likely trying to both educate each other, but that doesn't mean it will change how either of you think.

3. Know your boundaries: It's important to communicate, but there's only so much you can compromise on. If you feel like you and your partner are disagreeing on something that's fundamentally important to you, you'll need to think about how this will affect your future relationship. If this disagreement is really a deal-breaker, it isn't going to go away.
