Cupid’s Advice:

Children are a big step in a relationship. While they are bundles of joy that bring meaning to life, they can also bring frustration, exhaustion, and a little pinch of doubt that causes you to ask, "Am I doing this right?" Here are some things to consider before the water breaks:

- 1. Plan on spending: Raising a child costs money, from the beginning of pregnancy through the child's life. Stats show that you can expect to spend at least $11,000 on just the first year of your baby's life. Budget your money early so you can become accustomed with your new allowance when you need to.
- 2. Evaluate you and your partner's emotional health: Being a parent can bring out the best in you, but it can also bring out the worst. Realize the negative aspects of your personality, and work to control bad habits. Being emotionally stable will help your children to grow, as well as show them how to develop security in their lives as well.
- 3. Are you doing it for the right reasons? Don't have a child if you think it will save your marriage, make your partner settle down, or if you feel forced into it. A person convinced into having children may feel resentment, annoyance, and even anger when the baby arrives. Make sure you and your partner both want to take this step.
