How do you deal with the public backlash when you're having conflict in your relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

When you and your partner are having problems, it can seem like meddling family and friends are worse than the paparazzi.

Here are some ways to go about combating the public:

1. Keep silent: If all you can think to say is mean-spirited, it's probably best to keep quiet. It's your business, and no one else needs to know what's going on in your relationship.

2. Don't pick a fight: If your better half is going around telling their side of the story, don't address them. Instead, find the people he's been speaking to and tell them your side personally.

3. Take the advice: Sometimes people want to know about your problems just to give you advice. Entertain them, but make your own decisions.
