

'Twilight' Star Kristen Stewart Talks Love and Relationships

Actress Kristen Stewart has had a lot of experience with love, playing half of one of the most tumultuous on-screen relationships in the movie saga, Twilight, and being in love with her co-star, Robert Pattinson. UsMagazine.com reports that her advice on relationships was pretty simple. "Don't be an a-hole. Don't be mean. Don't take s-t. Don't settle," she said. The star continued on to say, "Good relationship advice for me tends to being honest and knowing yourself." Although Stewart is very into all things Twilight, she reveals her boyfriend does not have the same appreciation. "Me and Taylor [Lautner] are actual Twilight fans, so we can sit there and be so totally into it! Whereas I sit there with Rob...He likes it, but he has just such a different energy."

How do you know when you're settling for a mediocre relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

When settling in a relationship, you mind may be saying, "yes," but your heart is definitely saying, "no". Be sure to take notice of the signs that you're not happy in your relationship:

- 1. No conversation: Communication is key in every relationship. If you and your partner's conversations are rare, take this as a warning that maybe you aren't clicking like you should be.
- 2. People take notice: If others can see the tension and awkwardness in your relationship, then you probably should take some time to analyze your connection.
- 3. No feelings: If you feel nothing for your significant other when you kiss, touch or even look at them, you're most likely settling. It's probably best to move on.

How do you know when you're settling? Tell us your story below