

It's On, Off, and On Again for Tamera Mowry

 Sister, Sister actress Tamera Mowry and Fox News correspondent Adam Housley are giving it another shot. According to E! News, Adam proposed to Tamera last week in Italy, and a source close to the couple says, “they were engaged a few years ago, but broke it off... They have been dating on and off for the past year and now he has put a ring on her finger once again.” This isn't the first celebrity couple to announce a “re-engagement.” Just last month, Megan Fox and Brian Austin Green announced their plans to tie the knot after calling off a three year engagement last February. The two finally married in late June. We'll now see if the second time's a charm – or better yet, a diamond – for Mowry and Housley.

Is it wise to commit to someone for a second time after initially calling off an engagement?

Cupid's Advice:

You may think the person is the love of your life, but deciding to take the plunge after initially calling off an engagement requires some thought. Cupid can help sort out some of your concerns:

1. Don't rush into it: If the engagement was called off, there must be reasons behind the break up. Make sure you truly know what the concerns were the first time around so you can work them out before deciding on marriage once again.

2. Figure out the truth: Are you really in love and see yourself with this person for the rest of your life? It's better to be honest with yourself from the beginning so you don't end up committing to someone you aren't happy with.

3. Get your priorities straight: If you and your partner have seriously taken the time to work out your issues, and both understand why now is the right time to get married versus before, make sure you're on the same page when it comes to your future. Take a look at these ten important questions to ask before you get engaged.