

Is JWOWW Getting Engaged?

Jenni 'JWOWW'

Farley is the next Jersey Shore member to tie the knot. Farley and boyfriend Roger Mathews are considering marriage, according to People. The pair, who have been together for almost two years, live together and are ready to make the next step.

How do you know when it's time to consider marriage?

Cupid's Advice:

After you've been dating for a while, your left hand usually starts to itch with anticipation of an engagement ring. Here are some ways to tell that it's time to move forward and consider marriage:

1. You want to settle down: If you're growing tired of uncertainties and dating around, it might be time to settle down. Talk to your partner and see what the next step is for you.

2. You're practically married already: You're living together and have kids—you might as well tie the knot.

3. You can't imagine life without them: If your love makes your life complete, it may be time to vow to each other for life.

How do you know when it's time to consider marriage? Tell us below.