Cupid's Advice:

Not all of us are musically gifted, but being a little creative still helps to make your special day more memorable for you and your new spouse. Here are some ideas that are sure to make your wedding unforgettable:

1. Choreograph a dance with your friends: Creating a silly and fun dance will keep your guests entertained and your new partner smiling. Consider choreographing the dance to a song that has a special meaning to you and your partner in order to make it more enjoyable and significant.

2. Vows: This may seem obvious, but not everyone can find the right words when it comes to expressing emotion. Still, if you try to write your own vows, your wedding will feel more intimate and special. Try talking about personal memories and looking into your love's eyes while sharing how you feel.

3. A collection of your memories: Before the wedding, spend some time putting together a little gift to give to your partner either during the ceremony or at the reception. Collect some of the pictures you've taken together and any memorabilia you have as a couple and put together a creative little binder or box of memories. This will surely make your partner shed some happy tears and make the wedding as special as possible.
