What are some ways to decide on a baby name with your partner?

Cupid's Advice:

Naming a baby is probably one of the hardest decision to make. Cupid has some advice for how to pick a name:

1. Think of the big picture: Always take into consideration how the first name will sound when put together with the last. Rhyming names are usually not the best decision. In addition, you may want to avoid 'pun names' unlike Kim and Kanye who chose to name their baby North West.

2. Heritage: Having a baby named after someone close to you is one of the biggest honors that you can bestow upon someone. If there is anyone particularly influential to you or your significant other's life, then you may want to consider naming your baby after him or her.

3. Compromise: A lot of couples have trouble agreeing on a name for their child. In this case, compromise is key. One can pick the first name and the other can pick the middle name. When the baby comes and with the name already prepared, everyone will be happy!
