How do you know when you're ready to expand your family?

Cupid's Advice:

Just because you know you eventually want a large family with several children doesn't mean that you're ready for that right now. The decision to add another child to your brood requires a great deal of thought and consideration. How do you know when you're ready for another baby? Cupid is here to help:

1. You can afford it: No one likes to boil family matters down to money. However, the fact remains that you cannot live on love. If you are not financially stable enough to support a family that is larger than the one you have now, then you are not ready to have another baby.

2. You BOTH want it: By the time you're in the delivery room, it's too late to confess that, actually, you're not sure you want more kids. You and your partner have to be very honest with each other about the kind of family you both want. You are not doing anyone any favors by bringing a child into the world that you do not want.

3. Your kids are ready to be siblings: Are the children you have now have emotionally mature enough to play second-fiddle to a newborn? Don't assume they are just because they're old enough to dress themselves. Every child is different. Talk to your children and see how they feel before you make decision that will dramatically effect their lives
