Cupid's Advice:

When you begin a relationship and everything is going well, or perhaps not so swell, it's easy to feel the need to share with anyone who'll listen. But, here are some tips as to why you should think twice:

1. R-E-S-P-E-C-T: Entering into relationships means letting your guard down and allowing another person to get closer. You share parts of yourself that not everyone knows, and in doing so, you both understand that these parts are personal and private – just like your relationship should be.

2. "And Kat and Becca agree with me, too": Friends are a great support system, and after a fight they're often the first to hear every detail. And like a good friend, they'll listen and most likely support your side of the argument. But what happens when you and your significant other rehash the past and you point this out? Oops! No one likes knowing his or her dirty laundry is being aired out.

3. Keep it to yourselves: This relationship involves you and your partner, and that's the way you should keep it! One of the greatest things is sharing moments and experiences that no one else can. Your relationship is a serious commitment, not a soap opera to be played out in front of others.
