How do you keep your relationship from being criticized by the public?

1. Social media: This is where you open up the can of worms as far as criticism. Be very aware of what you are saying and posting here because internet trolls are not always kind.

3. Be yourselves: As long as you are true to yourself and your partner there is less ways that words can hurt you. Try not to let the judgement in and if you do have the confidence in yourself and your partner to laugh at it.
