The actress confessed, “He’s a good kisser,” but the smooching was purely professional. She went on to say, “He’s a lovely human being also, he reminded me of my best friend’s little brothers growing up. He’s just a silly, fun guy; we laughed a lot. He makes fun of himself all the time; he’s adorable...” Luckily, it seems like Stewart has nothing to worry about.

Why is the first kiss in a relationship so important?

Cupid’s Advice:

There are a lot of firsts in a new relationship. Cupid has some reasons that the first kiss is particularly important:

1. Connection: As much as you may like your new potential partner, the first kiss says a lot about your chemistry. Either the connection is there or it isn't, and most of the time it's not something you can force.

2. Kissing style: The truth is, you've both probably kissed other people before, which means you have your own way of doing it. If your smooching techniques don't match, it could be a turn off!

3. Aftermath: Most of us think about "the first kiss" hours after it's over. If you're really unhappy with it, it may be a deal breaker.
