

Mariah Carey and Nick Cannon Are Having a Boy and a Girl

Ever since Mariah Carey and Nick Cannon confirmed their pregnancy last year, everyone has been wondering about the sex of their twin babies. It's both a boy and a girl, a close source to the pair told UsMagazine.com. The couple has been cautious about revealing too many details, as they struggled to conceive after a miscarriage in 2008. But when President Obama asked them about the pregnancy, they couldn't resist and broke the news about having twins. The source said, "Those kids will have everything. Mariah and Nick are ecstatic."

How do you prepare for opposite sex twins?

Cupid's Advice:

Nothing can prepare you for that excited feeling you get when you discover that you're expecting opposite sex twins.

Wondering about how you should prepare for their arrival? Cupid is here to offer some advice:

1. Necessities: Although you're ecstatic about the arrival of fraternal twins, financial worries can sometimes get in the way. Supplies such as diapers, food, toys and other baby gear can be shared. However, you have to invest in items that every opposite sex twin needs, such as clothing and safety seats.

2. Bedrooms: Are your twins going to share the same room for a long time? It's best to divide the space in half, decorating the sides based on their gender. If they won't be sharing, then choose a neutral color for the rooms by staying away from pink and blue.

3. Stereotypes and comparisons: Studies show that parents treat opposite sex twins differently and are also frequently comparing them. If the girl learns to talk before her brother, it doesn't mean that there's something wrong with him. Make sure to treat each twin equally, and understand that they are unique and will have individual talents.

Why Kate Hudson Kept Pregnancy a Secret

Kate Hudson isn't keeping quiet any longer. The actress has publicly announced that she is pregnant with her second child by her rockstar boyfriend Matthew Bellamy, People reports. Hudson tells The Times that she has been having bouts of morning sickness but couldn't tell anyone, not even her closest friends. "But I didn't want anyone to know for a long time," she said. "I was just hoping that all of a sudden, I could show up somewhere with a big belly." Hudson says her due date will come this summer, making her son, Ryder, 7, who she had with her ex-husband Chris Robinson, a big brother.

Should you keep the news of your pregnancy from your friends?

Cupid's Advice:

There are few things more exciting in life than announcing a pregnancy to all of your friends and family. But sometimes, depending on the situation, it may be best to keep mum for the first few weeks:

- 1. A new chapter: Your new life isn't going to start once you leave the hospital nine months from first finding out about your pregnancy, but instead right then and there. When you first hear that you're pregnant, it's a lot of information to take in all at once. It's okay not to tell anyone until you yourself can handle the news.

2. Work-related: You may be ecstatic about being pregnant, but will your employer feel the same way? It can be nerve-racking to tell your boss that you'll be needing to take maternity leave, especially if you've just received a recent promotion. Take a little time and some deep breaths before you announce it to the workplace.

3. Everyone wants a piece: Others may not realize that your pregnancy is yours alone. Advice, questions, belly touches and name suggestions will be flying their way right into the delivery room. By not making your pregnancy public right away, it will give you a little more privacy and a lot less stress.

Kate Hudson Talks Pregnancy and Engagement Rumors

Actress Kate

Hudson's pregnancy is igniting many rumors, most of which are absurdly untrue, reports UsMagazine.com. While on the England-based talk show The Graham Norton Show, Hudson effectively debunked several rumors. She revealed that while she is pregnant with boyfriend Matt Bellamy's child, she's not engaged to him. When asked about the possibility of a marriage, she replied, "I don't like putting that sort of pressure on it and I don't feel it necessary to get married." The actress went on to explain, "I just want to be happy."

Is getting married unnecessary pressure to a relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Many feel that a relationship is only worthwhile if it results in marriage. However, more and more people are finding this untrue. Before you begin to stress over a dead-end relationship, consider the following factors:

1. Don't rush: Your relationship will pan out in its own time. Even if it seems to have a long way to go before marriage enters into the equation, have no fear.

2. Think things through: Before you sprint to the altar, think about the reasoning behind your decision. Do you want to marry to please others, or is it really what you want? Marriage is life-changing, so take it seriously.

3. Your happiness: Ultimately, the point of marriage is for the couple in love to be happy together. If you and your partner are happy already and you don't think marriage will enhance it, it's totally fine to keep things the way they are.

How do you prepare for a baby boy versus a girl? Cupid’s Advice: Although any baby is a blessing, the way you prepare for each one can vary. Cupid has some tips on how to prepare for a baby boy versus a girl:

1. Blues and greens: Now that you know you’re having a little boy, ditch the pinks and stock up on the typical boy colors. Even though people say yellow is neutral, it’s cute to pair it with blues and greens as well.

2. Baby boy themes: You want to design the nursery with your new baby boy in mind. Trucks, airplanes and trains are always safe picks for boy nursery decor. Dinosaurs and farm animals are also great choices.

3. Plan of action: Before your baby is born, make sure to discuss how you want to raise him. Put together a plan for how you’re going to instill values (like how to treat women) in him.

How can you support each other during the birthing process?

Cupid's Advice:

It's no secret that having a child is a difficult process, but with a little help from your spouse, it doesn't have to be a nightmare. Cupid has a few ways you and your partner can support one another:

- 1. Learn together: It's important that you and your spouse are familiar and comfortable with the process before it happens. Attend birthing classes together. You have to learn about effective ways to support each other before you can actually do it.

2. Communicate: It's not easy to support your partner if you're not sure how to help. Keep the line of communication open about the experience and how it's affecting the both of you. Always remind each other that you're in this together!

3. Have a plan: The worst time to panic is when the baby is on his or her way. Have a solid plan in place ahead of time so that when the time does come, all you have to worry about is being there for each other.

Should you marry the father of your child?

Cupid’s Advice:

Single mothers are becoming more and more common. Before committing to the father of your child, you should consider a few of the following:

- 1. The baby: Make sure that you are marrying your partner for the right reasons. If you’re only tying the knot because of your pregnancy, take your beliefs and values into question. Having a child together may not be good enough of a reason to commit to each other for life.
 - 2. Your financial future: Don’t get married for financial reasons. Money is one of the key factors that can ruin a relationship. There’s always child support if you’d rather not tie the knot with the father of your child.
 - 3. Your feelings: Analyze your relationship with the father of your child. If you’re in love, and you feel that a life with him would make you happy, then go for it! Having a traditional family arrangement is just an added bonus.

"No words can adequately convey the incredible gratitude that we feel for everyone who was so supportive throughout this process, in particular our gestational carrier."

How should you welcome your surrogate child?

Cupid's Advice:

Whether adopting or welcoming a surrogate child to your family, sometimes it's hard to feel at home with a child you're only just meeting. Here are a few ways to welcome your new child to the family:

1. Throw a baby shower: Even though the baby isn't arriving traditionally, the child will still be yours to care for and love for the rest of your life. Take the opportunity to throw a baby shower, both anticipating the new baby and thanking the birth mother for her selflessness.

2. Make a transition: If your child experienced a lapse in time between birth and coming to live with you, the baby has probably become used to his or her environment. Ease the transition by incorporating the smells and textures your baby is accustomed to into your own home.

3. Make a connection: Just because you didn't physically give birth to your child doesn't mean you aren't the baby's "real" parents. Spend the time needed to establish a parental connection.

After marriage, how long should you wait before having kids?

Cupid's Advice:

You've just taken the plunge with marriage, so when should you start adding to the family? Cupid has some tips on how long you and your partner should wait before having kids:

- 2. When your finances are in order: It's no secret that having a child can end up being pretty expensive. Make sure you have the finances to back up your decision.

What should you think about before having a child?

Cupid's Advice:

Bringing home a baby is one of the most exciting new chapters a relationship can take on. But before you and your partner decide to add on to your family, sit down and consider just what all goes into raising a child:

1. Cost: Not only are babies expensive, but the pregnancy and birth is as well. New clothes for your growing belly and a new room to furnish are two other factors, so there's a lot of preparation that goes into those nine months leading up to the birth.

2. New roles: After your maternity leaves ends, decide who will be the breadwinner and who will be the caretaker. Decide whether daycare is an option. Sometimes it is more convenient for the father to become a stay-at-home dad. Find out how he feels about that.

3. Values and morals: You and your husband may connect on every level and feel like you've discussed every topic there is, but bringing a child into the world will bring out a whole new slew of conversation starters. Come to a consensus about what values you will raise your children.

 - 3. Avoid stress: Growing your family can be busy and stressful. No matter how hard it may seem, make it a priority to make time for yourself.

How does the relationship with your partner change after a baby?

- 2. Romance her: Bring back date night, and make sure she dresses to the nines. A romantic dinner will help remind her just how much you love being in her company.
- 3. Spice it up: Being pregnant can make some women feel the farthest thing from sexy. Buy some maternity lingerie, and rekindle the romance. Show her that you still find her beautiful.

How do you handle secrets in a relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Truth and honesty are necessary for a healthy relationship, but sometimes sharing secrets seems to do more harm than good.

Cupid offers some thoughts on how to spill unsavory surprises to your partner:

1. Consider the situation: If you're as shocked to learn about something as Tom Felton was, look at the big picture. Figure out if your partner is likely to hear the news, if the information will affect your relationship, and if it's something that should be taken seriously.

2. Put yourself in his shoes: Think about how you would take this news if it were the other way around. Use your partner's personality as a guide for breaking the news.

3. Establish a policy of full-disclosure: If your secret isn't a surprise to you like it was to Tom Felton, take this opportunity to re-establish the trust in your relationship. Explain why you didn't share right away, and make a pact to be more honest in the future.

How can a couple tell when they’re ready for another baby?

Cupid’s Advice:

A baby brings a couple joy and strength in their relationship, but also a higher level of responsibility and stress. So, how do you know when you’re ready to bring another bundle of joy into your family's life? Cupid offers some advice:

1. Ask yourself questions: Before planning a pregnancy, you should ask yourself, "Why do I want this baby?," "How will this baby affect our lives?" and "Are we ready for this change?" If honest answers to these questions from you or your partner seem convoluted, you should consider waiting until your lives and relationship are in a more stable place.

2. Consider economics: According to the Wall Street Journal, the average cost of raising a child today is over $225,000. You and your partner should consider whether you're financially stable enough and can provide a good life for yourselves, your other child or children and the new baby before considering having another.

3. Keep family in mind: The most important thing for you to consider in this decision is your other child or children. Are they happy, healthy and stable? Will you have enough time, money and attention for all your children? You should also consider other family members, such as siblings and parents, and whether they will be available to help you and your partner with your new bundle of joy.

When should you make decisions for your partner in a relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Though telling your partner what to do is rarely a sign of a healthy relationship, there are some instances where you should let it happen:

- 1. During pregnancy: Take a cue from Mariah Carey and let your beau dote on you while you're pregnant. If that means listening when he tells you lie down or if it means changing your clothing style, listen up! Keep in mind it's his child, too, and he only wants what's best for you both.

2. In the hospital: If you're really sick and in the hospital, chances are you aren't thinking clearly. Let your partner, who surely has your best interests at heart, help you make your medical decisions. Try to remember that your sickness may be messing with your decision making skills.

3. When you're drained: Sometimes when you get home from work, you're completely drained of energy. But you haven't seen your partner all day and he/she wants to spend some quality time together! That's fine and all, but give him the power to make decisions for the evening. It'll relieve the mental stress of coming up with which movie to watch or what to make for dinner. There's nothing wrong with taking a break!

When and how should you tell your mate about your pregnancy?

Cupid's Advice:

Baby news is always exciting (and sometimes unexpected), so make sure you tell your partner in the right way. Cupid has some ideas on when and how to break the news:

- 1. Wait until you're certain: If your period is only a couple days late, wait it out. Unless you want to take the pregnancy test together, don't tell him until you are absolutely sure you're pregnant. False hopes are never a good thing.

2. Tell him at the right time: Don't bring it up in the midst of a fight. Wait until he's in a good mood and you have his full attention to avoid a bad reaction. Plus, this is a time you want to remember fondly!

3. Have some fun: Why not pick a creative way to tell him? Try buying some baby socks (they're small and easy to hide) and slip them into his pocket before he goes to work. You should expect an elated call in a couple of hours!

How can you and your partner best handle news of a surprise pregnancy?

Cupid’s Advice:

As the saying goes, you can’t be just “a little bit” pregnant.

Ready or not, your little one will soon be here, and you and your partner will have to come to the understanding that you’re going to be parents. Cupid has some tips to help turn the element of surprise into baby bliss:

1. Listen to the doctor’s orders: While you’re trying to sort out all of the emotions in your head and deal with the changes to your body, make sure not to disregard yours and the baby’s health. A doctor can also help run through your options if you are uncertain about the pregnancy. Plus, he/she can tell your mate exactly how to care for you.

2. Find a support system: Your main support system should be with your partner; however, the surprise of having a baby can be overwhelming. Find someone else to talk to and express all of your feelings. Sometimes an outsider can open your eyes and put your concerns into perspective. Then, go back to your beau and let him in on your new revelations.

3. Trust your maternal instinct: Once you find out you are pregnant, your maternal instinct will most likely kick in. Although it takes a little longer for your partner's paternal instinct to follow suit, once it does, you can start "nesting" as a couple. While you'll inevitably be thinking that you're not sure if you can handle this, trust in yourself and your beau, and have confidence!

Can having a connection with your partner's children make your relationship stronger?

Cupid's Advice:

You can't trust just anyone to raise your child, but you must eventually trust your partner with your children if want the relationship to grow. Cupid has some things to consider:

1. Part of the family: When a relationship where children are involved starts to get serious, the significant other usually becomes an honorary family member, making appearances at birthday parties and Thanksgiving. Being invited to these occasions is the first step in becoming a permanent part of a child's life.

2. The baby connection: Sharing the ups and downs of raising a child as couple is a great way for you to bond with both your partner and their kids. By connecting this way, you can get a feel for who your partner really is and what his or her daily life is truly like.

3. Parenting is hard work: Kids may seem cute at first, but don't be fooled. Nights on the couch waiting cartoons may be replacing your nights on the town if you choose to be with someone with children. Be prepared!

How do you know if your partner is parent material?

Cupid's Advice:

Not everyone is as eager to be a parent as Josh Duhamel. Cupid has some ideas on how to find out whether your partner will make a good dad one day:

1. Ask him: The best way to determine if your mate is father material is to talk to him about it. Or, try asking him general questions like how many children he wants and at what age. If he gives you an answer right away, he's probably considered it before and is open to the idea. If he gets a little freaked out, well that should be a clear sign that he's not quite ready.

2. Watch and learn: See how he behaves around your other kids. If being around children comes natural to him he'll most likely make a good daddy to his own. If he seems uncomfortable or indifferent around youngsters, it may be something you should further explore.

3. Meet the parents: Find out if he gets along with his parents. If he's had a bad relationship with his mom or dad, he may need to work out some issues first before he can think about becoming a parent himself.

How can you keep your spouse and kids happy at the same time?

Cupid's Advice:

Keeping all your relationships healthy can be tricky, but Cupid has some ideas on how to keep everyone, including yourself, happy:

1. Make the time: It sounds simple, but between finances, chores, personal projects and work, it's easy to forget to take the time to show your loved ones you care. Set aside at least 30 minutes per day for each person, and worry about other distractions later.

2. Focus on your bond: Do something with each family member that's important to both of you. Whether it's as simple as watching a show you both like, or chatting together about a shared interest, activities done together will strengthen what makes your relationship unique.

3. Plan group time: Your connection with you family is just as important as your individual relationships with each family member. Take the time to plan weekly events, no matter how simple – it will bring the whole family together doing something you all love.
