Cupid's Advice:

It can feel like a shot to the gut when you find out your partner has been cheating, especially if you thought you were both somewhere early in the relationship but your partner didn't have the same understanding. Cupid has some advice on how to handle things when you find out your partner has been cheating:

1. Don't publicly blast them: If there is any chance of saving your relationship, publicly announcing your partner's behavior is a sure way to destroy any chance you may have at fixing it. Slip-ups happen. Don't immediately turn them into the bad guy. Plus, it makes you look bad in the process.

2. Try to understand why it happened: Give your partner a chance to explain. Were they caught up in the moment at a party with friends? Did they not understand the grounds of the relationship? Don't let them off the hook too easily, but also don't immediately write them off.

step back to emotionally distance yourself from the situation until you're ready to make a decision.

Celebrity Break-Up: Demi Lovato Splits from Fashion Designer Henri Levy

Cupid's Advice:

All new relationships have a honeymoon stage. Whether you decide to stick with your partner after a rough time or not is the true test of a relationship. Cupid has some advice on how to know when a relationship has long-term potential:

1. You feel like yourself with them: You're okay with letting them see you limp in the morning because you tripped while walking the dog. You don't care if your partner sees you with bed-head. You let them see you worrying because your paycheck wasn't as large as you thought it would be. While all of these may be examples, it's important to be yourself around your partner. If you have to fake who you are to impress the person you're with to avoid judgment, then the relationship will not last.

2. You know what your partner needs: They know how you like your coffee, and they can tell when you're about to have an emotional breakdown days before it happens. When your partner instinctively knows what you need, then they just may be the one you're meant to live your life with – and it's not just from their side. When you know that your partner needs something without them saying anything, then it means that you have reached the point where you're both in a solid partnership.

3. You're physically intimate: A relationship with long-term potential isn't about the sex. You can both be virgins up until marriage if that is something you both value before making a life-long commitment. Holding hands, innocent kisses, and hugs are a sign that you are both comfortable. And if you aren't waiting until marriage, the time between the sheets will help build a stronger connection as long as you both understand that it's a way for you both to show how much you love each other.

Cupid's Advice:

Nothing can keep you from a happier future than an open wound from a past relationship. Cupid has some ways to keep the fall-out from your past relationship civil:

1. It's okay to still love each other: Your relationship may be over, but that doesn't mean the love disappears. Love is a beautiful and painful thing, and it is a gift. Part of growing up is recognizing that love by itself isn't always enough to make a relationship work. Breaking off a relationship that isn't working isn't about ending the love you feel. Sometimes loving someone means letting them go for your happiness and for theirs.

2. Keep the conversation simple: If you have to talk to your ex, keep it civil and simple. Avoiding an ex is impossible; after all, it is a small world. So, keep the conversation as light as possible, and try not to bring any baggage to this conversation. Greet them! Ask them how they are doing. Laugh, joke and be open-minded and friendly. Above all else, keep things moving.

3. Remember your boundaries: There's a difference from knowing someone casually and knowing them intimately and at times the line blurs. There will be a point when your ex jumps back into the dating game and you'll wonder if he or she thinks of you. You have to remember things are different now. When a relationship ends, you can't expect to treat your ex the same way because the role you have in his/or her life now is completely different.
