Royal Celebrity Wedding: Meghan Markle & Prince Harry to Face Danger on Their Wedding Day

By Jessica Gomez

In celebrity news, royal celebrity couple Meghan Markle and Prince Harry face a potential danger: being a target. According to EOnline.com, former Head of Royal Protection and Chief Superintendent of the Metropolitan Police Service Dai Davies said: "History has a habit of repeating itself. In the last thousand years, there hasn't been a King or Queen that someone hasn't tried to murder." In addition, it cost $33 million to protect Prince William and Kate Middleton at their celebrity wedding in 2011 – one of the most pricey security operations. Undercover police, investigations to avoid terrorist attacks, snipers, and an extensive search for explosives hiding in any place you can think of were all part of that price. Harry and Meghan's protection plan for their big day could possibly cost more than William and Kate's – yikes! What makes them a bigger target is Harry's active military status in Afghanistan, plus the hate letter containing anthrax (an infectious disease caused by the bacteria Bacillus anthracis) aimed at Meghan. As we can see, the royal fam needs all that protection. We wish this beautiful couple the best of luck!

Royals have a dangerous element to their celebrity weddings. What are some ways to keep drama from infecting your wedding day?

Cupid's Advice:

We all want our wedding day to be perfect, or at least close enough to it. We plan ahead to try to create this perfect day, but there's more to it. Cupid has some ideas on how to keep your wedding day as stress and drama free as possible.

1. Stay organized and delegate when needed: If you plan ahead, like most of us do for our wedding day, then you're off to a good start. But maintaining everything organized is the tough part if things don't go accordingly. And let's face it, many times things don't go according to plan. And don't be a total control freak either. It is your wedding day, but you need to learn to pass down tasks when necessary. Communicate properly and trust in your close friends and family to help you get the wedding you deserve.

2. Adjust your guest list and seating arrangements properly: This may not be the case for everyone, but sometimes we need to take more consideration in who will be on the guest list and who will be seated with who for more than just the typical reasons. Do certain people not get along or have drama with one another? Then make sure they are seated far away from each other! And take any other actions necessary to keep drama from going down on your big day.

3. Meditate: On your wedding day, you should meditate. It's an exciting day, but also stressful because you obviously want it to be magical. Try meditating one to three times that day to keep you calm and grounded. We know you don't have tons of time, so five to 10 minutes each time should do the trick. It's worth it!

Cupid's Advice:

Sometimes break-ups don't end badly, and in those times you may want to stay friends with your ex. Cupid has some advice on the benefits to staying friends with an ex:

1. They know you: If you guys end on a good note and stay cool with one another, then they can give you advice. The people we date get to know us in ways others don't. This comes in handy when it comes to your new relationship, because your ex can give you advice based on your past experiences and the fact that he indeed knows you in that way. Just make sure you are not dealing with a bitter or spiteful ex – you would not want to take the wrong advice.

2. You've got history: It's a shame to let all that history go to waste if you are both decent people that get along well after the break-up. Just because your romantic relationship didn't work out doesn't necessarily mean that a friendship won't work. You never know – maybe you were not compatible as lovers, but you make great friends, and the history can make the friendly bond stronger.

3. You get closure: Becoming friends with an ex can be a path into getting over them, but only as long as you're both ready and willing to actually be friends. If you're friends, then you obviously should have let go of any resentment between the both of you. The past is in the past, and now you've got a friendship. You didn't have to lose a good person just because it didn't work out.

In celebrity news, Kristen Bell is giving us her secrets to a successful relationship. What are three things that add to a healthy relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

There are many things you can do to help your relationship become healthier. Some things work better than others, while others work for some couples better than others. Nevertheless, here are three things to do for a healthier relationship:

1. Be honest: Being honest is a two way street. Being honest with one another is crucial. Trust is key to making a relationship work. Lies hurt and even ruin relationships. Being honest builds trust and makes the bond between you and your significant other even stronger. It can sometimes be hard to be honest at all times, but the benefits are worth it.

2. Encourage and compliment each other: Sweet things and encouraging words go a long way. Supporting each other is another crucial element to making relationships work. one another ahead!

3. Spend quality time together: Snuggle, do things you both love doing together, and try new things. Cuddling is great because physical contact and connection is important. As time passes, sometimes couples spend time together but not quality time. Spice things up and do different things or do those things you really enjoy – try to do that at least once a week.

Who doesn't judge you for past mistakes, but who wants to build a better future together ... Who builds you up and never makes you feel small ... Who supports your dreams and hopes and desires, and also has those of their own. Who doesn't put a price tag on your love ... Who holds your hand when you're scared and doesn't run away ... Who loves you, not in spite of your weirdness, but because of it ... Who makes you a priority in their life, no matter what," she continued. "Who doesn't hold you hostage with their love, but whose side you don't want to leave because you're happier when you're with them ... who makes you get shy when they look at you, because the rest of the world stops. That's the kind of love we all deserve. Anything less isn't worth it." How sweet!

In this celebrity couple news, Jodie Sweetin is moving on from a series of bad relationships. What are some ways to know you're choosing someone who will treat you right?

Cupid's Advice:

There are many things that are signs showing that someone will treat you right. Sweetin was right on the money with all she said on V-Day via Instagram. Here are three signs to be optimistic about:

1. They make you feel both safe and special: Having someone that treats you the way you should be treated is a wonderful thing. Not everyone can provide that for their lover. Being comfortable with your partner and feeling like they wouldn't do anything to hurt you is a comforting feeling. Trust is what leads to these feelings.

2. They respect your differences: This is important! It's great to have things in common, that's one of the many things that build a bond. However, having differences is okay, as long as you both respect each other's dissimilarities. Variation can be good when you both have boundaries and don't judge one another. This also leads to a more open relationship, which is a good thing.

3. They support you any way they can: Your partner should be your cheerleader. He even joked about it on Instagram when he posted a photo of the couple smooching Sunday. "This Sunday's outcome is a lot better than last Sunday's! #losingstreakstopsatone," he captioned. Adorbs!

This celebrity couple isn't letting the Super Bowl loss affect their relationship. What are some ways to keep negative life events from putting a damper on your relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

It happens. When we are involved in negative circumstances, we tend to misplace our emotions and take out our frustrations on our significant other at times, which isn't okay. Cupid has some advice on how to get around it:

1. Remember what you're mad at: Breathe and think. It's easier said than done, but it works. When we become angry, we can lose sight of what or who we're really mad at, which can lead us to take it all out on those closest to us, like your lover. When surrounded by negativity, clear your head by taking about 10 deep breaths – in and out. Then remember that you're not mad at your partner, and that they deserve your fairness and respect.

2. Do something with your significant other: It will help take the edge off. When you create a happy place with them, then outside negativity should not be able to reach you there. Also, building positive memories is always a good thing! Be sure to remain mindful of the energy you give out in your happy place because if you're being negative, then what's the point?

Cupid's Advice:

When your partner is going through a loss or disappointment, it is part of your relationship duty to help them get through this tough time together. Empathy is key when it comes to relationships. Cupid has some ideas on how to help give solace to your partner:

1. Be present: This may seem obvious, but sometimes people have the tendency to flee when bad circumstances arise. Be there for your partner, and listen to everything that they have to say. Instead of trying to change how they are feeling, simply listen and be there for them. Let them vent, and give them copious amounts of love.

2. Distract them: Once you have given your partner time to let out how they are feeling, make efforts to try and shift the energy. Even though you probably can't take away their disappointment or sadness completely, you do have the capabilities to alter their mind onto something else for the time being. Think of some things you can do that would be special for your partner: cook their favorite dinner, watch their favorite movie together, or go out for a fun date night.

3. Be okay with space: Everyone copes differently. If your partner is the type of person who needs time to themselves in order to get over a disappointment, let them have that. Try not to bombard them while trying to help when they just need some space to themselves. Sometimes it is hard to tell if your partner truly wants space or if they do want you to comfort them. Really try to listen to your partner and get a feel for what they need.

Also, never underestimate the power of hugs!

In some ways, I think that that’s been enormously beneficial because we have so much to share in a way,” she continued. And the actress had some insight as well: “Anytime that any relationship is hard, it’s the point in which you’re deciding, ‘Is this worth the investment getting through whatever that thing is?’”

In celebrity news, time away truly does make the heart grow fonder. What are some ways that distance can actually help your relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Sometimes in a relationship, you do need space. Sometimes we like it, sometimes we don't – but that's how it is! Here are a few ways relationships can benefit from space:

1. It can boost your individual growth: When in a relationship, we can sometimes lose sight of who we are as an individual. Many times this is due to the compromises we have to make and our focus on "couple goals," more than individual goals. Time apart will help because you'll get alone time. During this time, give some thought into where you want to go in life. Think of you, the individual. You can also learn some new things about yourself. As humans, we are constantly changing, and having space for yourself provides the environment and alone time to recognize something about yourself – which leads us to #2...

2. You can learn something new, like a hobby: And bring it back to your relationship. If you both learn new things while having time apart, it can be an exciting experience to share it with your partner after. Doing new things while there is space between you two helps because you learn things that are concentrated around your personal preferences and interests. You're doing two things: enjoying your time alone while learning and bringing something new that can even maybe spice up the relationship.

3. It can increase trust and decrease insecurities: If you're going to have time apart, you obviously have to trust each other. And if you don't trust each other, then you have to build that trust – and time apart is a way to do so. You can also gain a new perspective on the relationship. The independence you'll receive can actually make you more confident since you'll be focusing on yourself. Trust us, like we said before, some time apart can make the heart grow fonder.

cute, creative ways to announce your new relationship via social media:

Some fun adorable dates to choose from are: going for a romantic swim or boat ride, camping, a picnic, taking a class together (any kind), a getaway or road trip, and DIY project you are both working on. The list is endless! If the pressure of a photo of you both on a date is a little too much for you, you can also try taking an adorable, endearing photo or a stunning one of you both side by side looking your best – talk about couple goals! Ariana Grande and Mac Miller took the endearing approach, posting a cuddled up photo, while Elon Musk and Amber Heard went for the looking beautiful together.
