

Jenni “JWoww” Farley Tells Off Her Boyfriend Roger Matthews

Arguments between reality-TV star Jenni “JWoww” Farley and her boyfriend of two years Roger Matthews have been heating up since the start of JWoww’s Jersey Shore spinoff: Snooki & JWoww. While in Mexico with her pregnant co-star Snooki, the couple got into a fight regarding the fact that Roger had made plans the day that Jenny was supposed to return to the U.S. The argument continued to get worse until Roger suggested that Jenny reunites with her ex-boyfriend, and alleged abuser, Tom Lippolis, reports UsMagazine.com. In a sneak peek of the upcoming episode, JWoww can be quoted saying, “By telling me I should be with my ex, you can go f–k yourself! And you can burn in hell.” The two have been through many ups and downs throughout their relationship, but this argument may prove too hard to come back from.

What are some ways to avoid heated arguments in your relationship?

Cupid’s Advice:

Sometimes, a problem can get out of hand between you and a loved one. Cupid has some advice on how to avoid an argument with your partner:

1. Be open with your feelings: When your partner says or does something that upsets you, be honest. Don’t assume that they will understand why you are upset; it is your responsibility to explain what they are doing wrong and why it hurts your feelings. Open communication is one way to not only stop arguments, but to avoid them all together in the future.

2. Stay calm: One thing that will escalate an argument is yelling at your partner. Make sure to explain the problem calmly. If you raise your voice, your partner may feel attacked and the need to defend their actions can lead to a full-blown fight. If you can explain your side peacefully, your partner is much more likely to listen and take in what you say.

3. Watch your words: Words can be hurtful, especially when in the midst of a heated argument. It is important that no matter how mad you are, you try your best not to say something you will regret. Saying something you don’t mean can make an argument much worse, and lead to a breakup, so try to be honest and don’t say something merely to hurt your partner.

Jada Pinkett Smith Shoots Down Divorce Rumors...Again!

Jada Pinkett Smith once again denies rumors of a divorce with famous husband, Will Smith. The actress and mother of two, Jaden and Willow, tells Essence Magazine, “It seems like {rumors} happens at least once a year, or at least once every two years,” reports People. Their 4-year-old follows that up by clarifying that the two are not divorcing. Their 15-year marriage is still full of love according to her, adding that Will is “another part” of her. How do you fend off rumors about your relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Rumors are sometimes inevitable, but there are some things that you can do in order to keep gossip about your relationships from spreading. Cupid has some advice on how to stop rumors in their tracks:

1. Be honest: People are bound to gossip, but it is up to you what information you would like to disclose about your relationship to your friends and family members. Make sure that what you say to people are honest facts about how you're feeling, and not what you think sounds good.

2. Speak up: If you have a problem with something someone is saying, tell them! Asking someone to stop talking about your personal life may not always work, but if there is a rumor being spread that is not true or makes you uncomfortable, talk to the people who are spreading them; it's a good step towards making it stop.

3. Try to find out where the rumor is coming from: People may believe something that is not true based on your or your partners actions or something taken out of context. If you can find out what caused the rumor to begin with, you can address it and make sure that it is clarified.

Blake Lively and Ryan Reynolds Hit the Gym

One of the most beautiful Hollywood couples is making sure to stay that way. Photographed Sunday leaving a local gym in Bedford, NY, Blake Lively, 24, and boyfriend Ryan Reynolds, 35, looked as happy as ever, reports People. The couple recently bought a $2 million dollar home together in Bedford. After meeting on the set of The Green Lantern, the celebrity couple got together near the end of 2011. What are some ways to get healthy as a couple?

Cupid's Advice:

Keeping your body healthy is important, but it's sometimes hard to motivate yourself. Having your partner's help in that area can certainly help. Cupid has some tips on getting healthy as a couple:

1. Get gym memberships: Take a hint from Blake and Ryan, as the two look amazing! Fitness is important, and working out with a partner can give you the little push you need to do those 10 extra sit ups or run that extra mile. Besides, letting your partner see you totally sweaty after a hard work out will help you two become closer and more comfortable around one another

2. Prepare healthy meals together: One key ingredient in living a healthy lifestyle is eating right. You and your partner can count on each other to make sure that you cut out the fats and include more good foods, like fruits and veggies, in your daily diet. You can use the prep time as a great way to connect with your partner; cooking can be fun and romantic when you are with someone you love.

3. Do something active on date night: Instead of going to see another movie where you load up on popcorn and soda, skip the sitting and plan a more active date. Go on a hike and have a romantic picnic, or go ice-skating in the winter. Aside from being healthier, you will have more opportunity to talk with your partner, and probably have more fun.

On motherhood: "Of course, I'm the same as any parent. I feel the pressures of wanting to be a great parent and of wanting to do right by my children. I feel the pressure of knowing you can't be perfect even though you want to be. One thing I've learned: Being a mom, or a dad, is the most important job there is. It doesn't matter who you are. You have to embrace it for everything that it is."

On love: "The most important quality the man in my life should have is that he is sweet. I like the good guys and the hard part is that you never stop believing in love. You never stop. But that's also the best part. You never stop believing, and you never, ever give up."

On surviving tough times: “I live by the mantra that God doesn’t give you anything you can’t handle. It’s not until something bad or difficult happens that you really get to grow. And then you realize that those difficult moments, the times when you feel pain, are when you do a lot of your growing. You realize: There’s no reason to be terrified of things. Either way I’m going to be OK. At this point in my life, I’ve learned I can really survive things.”

Amy Laurent Tells Us How to Navigate a New Relationship and Go From ‘8 Weeks to Everlasting’

By Whitney Baker

Matchmaker and reality star Amy Laurent didn't realize how much she needed her own help until she began filming Bravo's 'Miss Advised.' As viewers saw throughout the first season, she quickly learned how hard it was to be open to love and how scary it was to feel vulnerable. That was the catalyst she needed to write her book, which she began working on two-thirds through filming. 8 Weeks to Everlasting: A Step-by-Step Guide to Getting (and Keeping!) the Guy You Want isn't about getting the ring or getting to the altar; it's about building a strong foundation for a lasting relationship with your perfect person. "This book offers simple guidelines that every women needs to follow when they first meet someone they like," Laurent explains. "It's about how to change your approach to dating so you don't lose yourself in it." No one knows the importance of these parameters better than the author. We had a chance to chat with her about what rules to follow, what lies men tell and what she's learned in her search for love.

How did you develop your dating philosophy?

I found that women kept asking the same questions when it came to men and the early stages of dating. I've been giving women solid advice on how to handle these situations, and they've come back to me and thanked me for everything I said. But here I am, getting back into dating myself, and I'm totally stinking at it. During the course of filming 'Miss Advised,' I realized that I needed my own coaching. Talk about a sense of urgency! It was like, "Oh my god, I need to take everything that I've been telling women to do and turn it into a handbook so I can find a guy for myself!"

No matter who we are, whether we're the expert or not, we really need rules that are clearly laid out, week-by-week, about how to date men. It's the first eight weeks that are the most torturous for women!

Related Link: 'Miss Advised' Star Amy Laurent Says, "I've Always Seen Katie Holmes With Someone Who Is More Mellow and Chill"

In the introduction of your book, you tell women that they're in charge of their fate and they can have any kind of relationship they want. What is preventing women from finding their ideal relationship?

Accepting less than what we deserve. There are boundaries that teach a new guy in your life what is acceptable and if you are a relationship girl or a casual dater. Your actions towards him define how he looks at you; you teach people how you want to be treated.

How many of us get excited about a guy and then start to cancel our plans with girlfriends because he suddenly calls and asks us out? That's the complete opposite of what you're supposed to do, but we've all been there. We're so emotionally invested in this guy that we've only been out with a handful of times that he has an affect on whether we have a good day or not. As women, we need to remember that we're in control.

If someone isn't respecting you or treating you how you want to be treated, you get to choose to write that person off.

You banish women from making the first move, yet so many of our male readers tells us they want a woman to approach them first. What are your thoughts on that?

One of the biggest points in my book is that women should never initiate. You don't call or text a guy first; you don't suggest that you get together on a Friday night. You have to let the man take the male role. If you become aggressive, he's going to lose interest very quickly.

As a matchmaker, I work very closely with men, and they tell me things that I wish they would say to more women's faces. If a guy says he loves when a women takes the initiative and asks him out, he's lying to you. Any man will say that it's cool at first – it's less work when the woman comes to him. But he'll also tell you that he's never dated that girl for longer than two weeks. That's the truth.

What love lessons did you learn from filming 'Miss Advised' and writing this book?

First, I gained a newfound respect for my clients. It had been so long since I put my heart out there, and I realized that my clients do it everyday. It's not easy!

I also learned that dating is about enjoying the process, weeding out the jerks, finding your perfect person and having fun along the way because you're in control. One of the keys is balance: you need to stay open enough but also hold the reins and pace yourself.

Lastly, if there were one piece of advice you could give women looking for love, what would it be?

One thing I said repetitively is that, if a guy genuinely cares about you and wants to get to know you, he is going to try to impress you – and you should let him. You really have to communicate what kind of relationship you want, and you have to stick to that.

And buy my book, of course!

How do you keep your wedding under the radar?

Cupid's Advice:

If you're not one for over-the-top weddings and have a reason to keep your wedding under-wraps, doing so can be difficult. Here are some ways to keep your wedding intimate, private and known only to those that matter:

1. Do not reveal the location until the day of: If you want to keep your wedding under the radar, spilling the location and venue is a mistake. Keep everyone guessing by telling them a different location all the time, or do not tell them a location at all. On your actual wedding day, send out a mass text or email telling your guests where to meet and what to wear, and you don't even have to tell them it's for a wedding.

2. Do not brag about the details: It's natural to get excited for your wedding day and want the world to be a little jealous! But, if you want to keep the wedding a secret, telling people the details from your wedding dress to the ceremony's location will allow everyone to know about it and potentially show up. Just remember that the only thing that matters on your wedding day is the love between you and your partner; that might help you keep your mouth zipped.

3. Act nonchalantly about your wedding day: If you act like your wedding day is nothing special, people will stop questioning you about it or even forget about it all together. That way, the wedding will be secretive and then afterward you can talk and brag about it all you want.

How do you know if your partner is trustworthy?

Cupid's Advice:

Before you can fully put your trust in someone, it's important that they prove they deserve it. Don't just assume your partner is honest because they say they are. Cupid has some tips:

1. Open your eyes: A lot of the time we get too caught up with our feelings for someone that we miss the signs that could have warned us to be careful. When you're in love, you're typically blinded by some of the more negative attributes of your partner.

2. Their words match their actions: If you put your trust in someone that person needs to be reliable and genuine. This means that when your loved one says that he is going to do something, it gets done – no excuses. He or she respects you, your time and your feelings.

3. They have morals: A person who has integrity is probably going to be more dependable than someone with no moral values. Someone who holds responsibility and honesty to a high standard will also hold you to those standards and will be less inclined to let you down.

With a focus on “staying healthy through pregnancy and getting back in shape afterwards,” the Days of our Lives actress motivates women to “feel good emotionally and mentally” as well in her new book.

Alison opens up to Celebrity Baby Scoop about her best postpartum weight loss secrets, her two “funny and loving” kids, son Ben, 7, and daughter Megan, 3, and her motivation to stay healthy and “the best mom” possible.

CBS: Tell us all about your book, The Mommy Diet.

AS: “The book is about staying healthy through pregnancy and getting back in shape afterwards. The focus is on nutrition and fitness plans, but at the same time, I also wanted to pay attention to advice to make you feel good emotionally, mentally too – like good fashion, beauty tips!

I am so lucky to be surrounded by experts in all these fields because of my job. So I thought it would be great to share those tips with all those moms out there with these questions.”

CBS: What inspired you to write the book?

AS: “So many books focus on how to take care of your child, which obviously is so important, but I didn’t see one book focused on the mom – how to get yourself back!

As I met so many fans afterwards asking me how I’d gotten in shape after Megan was born, I realized I had the perfect opportunity to share all the tips that I learned with all the women out there who want to get back in shape but need a little guidance – as I did/do!

While my book does focus on pregnancy and post-pregnancy recovery, it's for any woman who wants some advice on how to get their diet and nutrition on track."

CBS: What are your best postpartum weight loss secrets?

AS: "Staying healthy during the pregnancy is all about moderation. I absolutely appreciate the importance of rest, relaxation during pregnancy as well as paying close attention to your nutrition and fitness.

So, best advice? Listen to your body! After the baby is born, take the time you need to learn your new role as mom. But my best tip after having the baby is to remember that you will be a better mom if you're able to take the time to care for yourself too.

Keeps things interesting, and keeps your mind focused on what you're doing. If you don't have time to go to the gym, pop in a workout DVD while your baby is taking a nap."

CBS: How do you maintain a healthy balance between keeping fit and unrealistic Hollywood body images?

AS: "I stay healthy for my kids, my husband and for me. I was motivated to be healthy during my pregnancies and to get back in shape after because that is a key factor in being the best mom that I can be for my children."

CBS: How are your kids doing? What are they into? What do they do to make you laugh?

AS: "Ben is 7 and Megan is 3. They are so different. They are both fun, funny and loving kids, but Ben is much more sensitive and introspective where as Megan is a spitfire – so outgoing and precocious. We have our hands full, and we love every minute."

How do you remain civil with your ex when kids are involved?

Cupid's Advice:

Sometimes things just don't work out with your partner, and a divorce is inevitable. But, it's not so easy to just move past it when children are involved. Here are some ideas on how to stay civil with your ex when you have children together:

1. Set up a schedule: You should both agree on a schedule, so there aren't any arguments or misunderstandings. Specific times will make it easier to share equal time with your kids.

2. Don't get the kids involved with your breakup: You and your ex have to spend time with your kids, but don't get them involved in your breakup. Your kids shouldn't feel like they have to choose sides or keep secrets for anyone, so just leave them out of it.

3. Keep conversation strictly about your children: If you know you are always arguing with your ex partner and just can't get along, keep conversation simply about your children. This is when you both push your other issues aside and make more important decisions about your kids.

Cupid's Advice:

Deciding on whether to save a relationship can prove tricky depending on the situation at hand. Here are some great ways to help you decide if you should try to make it work or call it quits:

1. Destruction of trust: A relationship cannot function without trust. If you no longer have faith in your partner's actions and choices, the relationship is not worth it.

2. Lost feelings: Some experiences in your relationship hurt so bad that you no longer feel the same way about the one you love. If your desire to remain in a relationship fades, it's time to walk away.

3. Lack of concern: Being indifferent about your relationship means that you are fed up with it. If you don't care about the success or failure of your relationship, you may want to end things.

How do you know when to let your partner pay for a date?

Cupid's Advice:

The rules of chivalry traditionally place the man responsible for paying for a date. However, the rules of economy have changed, making the playing field even in terms of paying the bill. Here's a few tips on when to let your partner pay for a date, and when to cover it yourself:

1. They offer: There's a big difference between your honey reaching for the bill out of courtesy but allowing you to pay and having them actually offer to pay. If your beau is willing to pay the bill, let them, and be sure to offer to pay next time.

2. They want to split: There's nothing wrong with you and your sweetheart paying for your own meals. If they suggest splitting the check 50/50, that's a good way for both of you to save money and not feel guilty about that $130 check.

3. You're not alone: If you're out with friends, as Cyrus and Hemsworth were, the rules can be different than if it's just a date. For instance, if your partner wants to pay for the entire table out of appreciation for everyone, you can allow him the gesture. Still, be sure to pay them back with something special later.

How do you know when enough is enough when it comes to having kids?

Cupid’s Advice:

Having children can be the most beautiful gift in the world, but don’t take on too much when it comes to having and raising kids. Here’s how to know when enough is enough:

1. Your finances are unstable: You want your kids to have the best life possible and their life will be negatively affected if you are not financially secure. From buying diapers and clothes to saving up for their college fund, money is a major factor in having children. If you are just getting by taking care of the children you already have, you may want to hold back on having more.

2. You're overwhelmed as it is: The stress of balancing work, children and finances can be overwhelming. If you are strained from your hectic life, adding another child to the equation will not help.

3. One person in the relationship doesn't want any more: Relationships are all about compromise, not winning and losing. If one person in the relationship doesn't want more kids, you must respect that. Let them be the best parent they can be to the children you already have, and don't pressure them for more.

How can you help a friend cope with infidelity?

Cupid's Advice:

Having a partner cheat is undoubtedly one of the worst things that can happen to a relationship, and it's tough to handle no matter how strong you are. If one of your friends is in this situation, it's always nice to help them out where you can. Here are some tips on how to do just that:

1. Let them vent: Nothing helps someone sort out their feelings and understand their own situation better than talking to a friend. Although you can offer advice, what's most important is just listening to what your friend has to say.

2. Provide a distraction: Invite your friend to go shopping, see a movie or just hang out. Spending time together will give them a chance to stop thinking about their partner's infidelity and let them know that someone still cares about them, even if they've been hurt by a loved one.

3. Give them space: When someone is in a difficult place, sometimes they don't want to talk to anyone, even their closest friends. Don't be offended if your friend wants some time alone to come to terms with what happened. Let them know you're available and they'll come to you when they're ready to talk.

How do you know if age difference is going to be a problem in a relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Having a vastly different age than your partner may be difficult in a relationship, but it's not always problematic. Here are some ways to tell if it's going to be a challenge in your love life:

1. You live different lives: If your partner is still in school while you have a full-fledged career, it may be difficult for you to understand each other's goals, needs and desires. Your lives will be paced differently and that may get in the way of love and understanding.

2. Different interests: It's tough to be part of a couple where both people like completely different things. While you may be deeply involved in the latest pop culture crazes, if your sweetheart is older than you, they may not interest them at all. Having such difficult lifestyles will be a strain on your relationship.

3. No support: While it shouldn't matter if no one approves of your relationship, if you're losing the support of your family and friends, your relationship is definitely going to be harder. If this is happening, then it may be time to reconsider whether this age difference is worth it.

Olympian Jennie Finch Prepares to Welcome Third Child

Olympic softball champion and recently-retired player Jennie Finch is expecting her third child. The athlete announced in her People that she and her husband Casey Daigle are expecting yet again. The couple have two sons, Ace Shane, 6, and Diesel Dean, 13 months.

How is preparing for a third child different than one or two?

Cupid's Advice:

Despite what you may be told, parenting never gets easier. Here are some ways preparing for a third child is different than for your first or second:

1. You know what to expect: You and your partner have been there twice already, and knowing how you need to prepare is one way preparing is different. You have the experience in pregnancy, giving birth and raising a child, meaning you now know what has worked, and what hasn't, in the past.

2. You have help: While this may not always make things easier, as more hands can sometimes lead to more problems, at the very least you do have two children there to keep you, your beau and your new baby company.

3. You know you're prepared: The first time around was likely nerve-wracking for you and your sweetheart. The second time might have been, too. But with your third child, you're aware of everything that needs to be done and everything that will be done. It's time to calm down and welcome a new child into the world.

How do you know when to jump back into the dating scene after a breakup?

Cupid’s Advice:

Breakups can be difficult for everyone, but they shouldn’t keep you from looking for happiness. Although it helps to wait before dating again, eventually you’ll be ready to give it another try. Here are some ways you’ll know you’re ready:

1. You aren’t always thinking about your ex: After a breakup, especially if you were dumped, it’s likely that everything reminds you of your ex. When you're finally able to distance your thoughts from their memory, you're ready to find someone new.

2. You've found someone interesting: There's no need to rush into a rebound relationship after a breakup. Don't go for the first person you meet after your split. Instead, try to find someone genuinely interesting in order to ensure your new relationship lasts.

3. You're feeling confident again: Breakups can severely damage your self-esteem at first. Try to build up your confidence and comfort again by hanging out with friends and doing things you've always wanted to do. Once you feel good about yourself again, people will take notice.

Rumor: Were 'Big Brother' Stars JoJo and Shane In a Show-mance?

Big Brother's coach Britney Haynes is under a lot of pressure after losing two players in one week. One player, JoJo Spatafora, was nearly unanimously voted out of the house and off the reality show. However, Shane Meaney voted for her to stay. After her eviction, Spatafora told People about the "show-mance" between her and Meaney, saying their relationship was, "all just for fun," not for love. She continued by saying, "you get lonely in the house. There were no feelings on my end and I'm pretty sure on his too. I like to spice things up and make the show exciting." So, it was all just to make the reality show interesting after all, but they remain "really good friends," because they had the same coach.

What do you do if you fall for someone at work?

Cupid's Advice:

Mixing business and pleasure can always be tricky. If you fall for a coworker, consider these tips for handling the situation carefully:

1. Make a list of pros and cons: The classic tactic of weighing costs and benefits always works. If you value your career over dating your new crush, it's time to move on. If you think that this new special someone is worth at least a shot at dating, add them to your "pro" list and go on a couple of dates.

2. Don't try to keep it a secret: The more secretive you are at work, the more chances you have of getting caught and undergoing some sort of co-worker penalty. If you're very open about your crush at work and don't try to hide the flirting from others, no one will be surprised when you two go out on dates and hit it off. That way, you'll stay out of trouble and get the best of both worlds in business and pleasure.

3. Take things slow: When dating someone in the same work force, take things slow. You won't be able to bear looking at your co-worker if he ended up being a one-night stand, and even if you get too hot and heavy in the beginning, you don't want things to fizzle out right away. If you take things slow you'll be able to maintain that attraction and not have that awkward interference in the work place.

What are some ways that PDA can detract from those around you?

Cupid's Advice:

If you're with your partner, it's often hard not to show your affection through PDA. However, there are some reasons why it's often good to restrain yourselves when you're in public.

Here are some things to consider:

1. Making others feel uncomfortable: There's nothing wrong with holding hands or some quick kisses when you're out with your beau, but go too far with sloppy make out sessions and you could make the people around you feel uncomfortable. Remember to keep your PDA not only at your couple's comfort level, but also at the comfort level of those you're spending time with.

2. Missing out on other things: When you're spending time with your partner, it's easy to feel like you're in your own world, especially if you're letting yourselves show some PDA. Don't let that take away enjoying whatever you've come to see. For example, if you went to a play, you don't want to miss the plot because you're so busy with your significant other.

3. Your partner might not be willing: Don't forget that PDA can detract from your partner's comfort as well. Some affectionate people aren't willing to show that side of them in public, so make sure that they're okay with cuddling before you start. You wouldn't want to make them do something they don't want to do.

What are some ways to keep dating from being a distraction?

Cupid's Advice:

Sometimes it's hard to be truly dedicated to something when you're in a relationship. That shouldn't stop you from doing either: it's all about balancing your time. Here are some ways to keep dating from being a distraction in your life:

1. Don't change your daily routine: If you have been keeping a normal routine and are working towards a certain goal, be sure not to mess that up. Make your routine something you can't change or stop doing, and let your beau work around your schedule.

2. Make sure your partner is equally motivated: If you're dating someone who lies around all day doing nothing, it's easy to be distracted. You should date someone who is equally busy so you can both be on the same schedule.

3. Make sure they support you: As long as you date someone who is committed to supporting what you are doing, and pushes you to continue doing it, then there's no harm in that. You want someone who understands that you're dedicated and praises you for that.
