Is it important that your friends approve of your partner?

Cupid's Advice:

It's always nice to go into a relationship knowing that your friends approve, but is it a necessity? Cupid has some things to consider:

1. Your friends can see things you can't: If your friends do not approve, then it is very likely that they feel your partner is not worthy of you. Take what they say into consideration, even if you don't agree.

2. Your friend's intentions: While it's nice to believe that all of your friends want what's best for you, it's also possible that a few of them have ulterior motives. Be careful about who you trust.

3. What you want: Despite what your friends say, the choice is yours alone. Be sure not to let your friends make your decisions for you.

Wanting to be an actor and wanting to be famous are different.” If only Dan and Serena felt the same.

What details in your relationship should you keep to yourself?

Cupid's Advice:

Releasing private details about your relationship to the public, whether that being to your friends and family or via the paparazzi, can be tricky. Talk to your partner, and decide together what is appropriate. Cupid has some suggestions:

1. Privacy levels: What may be considered personal information to one person may be just fine for public scrutiny as far as the other is concerned. Our take on private and personal information probably comes from how we were raised as children and what was disclosed in our own family settings. If you and your mate can't compromise or agree on what is appropriate, perhaps dating someone who shares similar privacy levels would work better.

2. Girl's night out: One of the best parts of going out with the girls is getting to dish about your beau. Full disclosure. But beware: your beau may be doing the exact same thing with his crew. A good rule to keep in mind here is to ask yourself how you would you feel if the roles were reversed? If you think you may be upset in that situation, zip your lips when you're about to say something overly personal.

3. TMI: Even if you and your partner are completely open and want the world know everything about your relationship, the world may not feel the same. We've all been in that situation where you're stuck listening to someone jabber on and on about the specific intimate details of his or her relationship. Be careful you don't become that person!
