It'll make challenging tasks like taking them to the grocery store or even on a walk around the neighborhood that much easier. Plus, it may be your saving grace if they have trouble sleeping in those first few weeks!

2. Set-up a nursery: Will your twins share a crib? Will they share a room with two cribs? Or will they each have their own room? Be smart as you decorate their room(s) and buy the essentials. You'll have to buy two of some items (like highchairs), but other things (like a changing table), they can share.

3. Arrange for help: Even with one newborn, help is essential. With two babies, you'll need all hands on deck! Make plans for your mom or mother-in-law to come stay with you soon after they're born. During that time, interview trustworthy babysitters or nannies so that you have back-up whenever you need it.

You're about to choose a name for your child that they are most likely going to have for the rest of their life. You and your partner want to make sure that you find the perfect name. Cupid is here to help you figure out how:

1. Family honor: If you're like Kunis and Kutcher, there may be an important family member in your life that you want to honor by giving your child their name. It could be your family member's first, middle, or last name. Whatever name it may be, your child now lives on a family name that is significant and meaningful.

2. Inspiration: You could be inspired by something you and your partner both love, or something that associates with a positive memory. Did you get flowers on your first date? How about naming your daughter Rose or Lily? This inspiration gives you something you and your significant other both are happy with and leave you thinking of your good times together...a great legacy to leave with your newborn!

3. Common disinterest: Compromising on a name can start with finding names you both agree are not the best fit for your child. Eliminating specific names you both don't like will give you a narrower selection on names, and may push you towards a name that you could both agree on.
