Break-ups don't always end peacefully, and sometimes the drama can get out of hand. If you are looking for ways to deescalate the drama and keep your split as uneventful as possible, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Try not to make a scene: When you're going through a breakup, there will obviously be a lot of emotions and pain, but it's important not to blow it up too much. 2. Stay off social media: A lot of times, couples will use social media to communicate with their ex, and it can get really messy. Saying anything over social media is so public and makes matters worse. Instead of messaging, commenting, following, or unfollowing your ex on social media, try to only communicate with them in person to remove the excess drama that comes with social media.

The actor described how his cast members watched the event unfold and helped him get back into character to continue filming.

In celebrity break-up news, Max Ehrich claims he heard about his break-up from Demi Lovato via a tabloid. If you've decided to break things off with your partner, what are the best ways to go about it?

Breaking up with your partner can be one of the most difficult conversations to have. However, just because the conversation is challenging does not mean it's okay to go about ending the relationship without consulting your partner. If you are looking for the best ways to go about breaking things off with your partner, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Address the issues: Before you even get to the point of breaking up, it is important to discuss the issues you are having within the relationship with your partner. If the issues that the two of you are facing appear to be unrepairable, then continue forward with the split.

2. Privately and in-person: Even though a relationship is failing and there may be some ill-feelings between you and your partner, it is still important to respect the other person throughout the process. One of the main ways to show respect is to go about the break-up in a private setting and preferably in person. If distance is an issue, try to make the conversation as personable as possible by making a phone call rather than sending a text.

Cupid's Advice:

Sometimes we realize after getting into a relationship with someone that our bond was better suited for a friendship. Unfortunately, it can be difficult to back-track from this position without causing any bitterness or tension for both people involved. If you are looking for ways to limit the bitterness post break-up and turn the corner into a true friendship, Cupid has some advice for you.

1. Give it time: Even if you and your partner have gone through an amicable break-up, it can still be necessary to spend some time apart. During the time immediately following a break-up, bitterness and drama are likely to surface, which can be avoided if both parties limit their contact. Once the two of you have started on your own separate paths post-relationship, it can be easier to slowly build a friendship.

2. Respect each other's boundaries: It is important to understand that while you are still in your ex-partner's life, your role has changed. By understanding what both people want out of a friendship, you will prevent any bitterness or disagreements from forming.

3. Reminisce with each other: Just as Moore and Willis do, look back at all the great memories you made as a couple. Even if a relationship does not work out, it doesn't mean that all the memories you made together need to be tainted by the break-up. Remember things for how they were in the moment rather than how they are under the changed relationship status.

If you are looking for ways to deal with lingering drama with your partner's ex, Cupid has some advice for you.
