A baby is something to take seriously as it changes the dynamic of your relationship with your partner. See below for Cupid's relationship advice:

1. Perfect is unrealistic: When you decide to have kids, the things you are normally accustomed to doing are no longer realistic. Relationship Advice: 4 Ways to Break Up with Your Partner In the Nicest Way Possible

By: Josh Ringler

Breaking up is not the easiest thing to do. It may hurt your heart to do it, and it will most likely break the heart of your soon-to-be-ex as well. While calling off your relationship and ending your current love life isn't the easiest, it is important to do it in a nice way if at all possible. Almost everyone knows of those celebrity relationships that ended in tears and celebrity divorce, or those celebrity couples who have remained friendly after all their heartache and drama subsides. The same is true for us "normal" people. Use the following relationship advice pointers to make a difficult decision a little easier for both you and your partner.

These pieces of relationship advice will help you to make ending it a little less heartbreaking. If you are considering breaking up with your partner, take a look at how to do it nicely below.

1. Do it in person: A great piece of relationship advice is to do anything that is of importance in person. Whether it is initially getting the relationship going, or ending it, doing so face-to-face will only make the situation better. Look at some former celebrity couples like Jennifer Aniston and John Mayer, or Taylor Swift and Joe Jonas. Those celebrity break-ups were initiated by a text message or a phone call. They did not end well, and if you want yours to end well, do it while you can see them, be there to comfort them and talk through any heartache they may be experiencing.

Related Link: Celebrity News: Yolanda Foster Says Ex David Foster 'Probably Saved My Life'

2. The date and place matters: There are definitely some key dates and places where breakups should never occur. Anniversaries, birthdays, holidays, and times of death in one's family are not times to call things off. If you want to stay friends, or if you just want to be as nice as possible, save it for some other time. If they are on a vacation or doing something important like starting a new job, you should consider waiting if it is possible. Some places should be off the table, too. You shouldn't break their heart in public, if possible, and you should try to do it in a place where the memory won't "haunt" them. Their bedroom, for example, is probably not the best option.

3. Ease into the conversation: Reality TV stars make break-ups look overly dramatic and super painful. Heartbreaking moments are typically over-dramatized, but they don't have to be that way at all. Instead, ease into the conversation about the future of your relationship. Conversations like this will never be easy, but easing into the conversation will make it more bearable. A good piece of relationship advice is to keep the communication open, and that should continue even if things are about to end.

4. Be honest: While this piece of relationship advice goes along with open communication, it truly is important to remain honest and open when deciding to call it quits on a relationship. If you want to break up, but remain friendly and on good terms after, follow this piece of relationship advice and remain honest. That being said, it's important to not take that to an extreme and be brutally honest. Say what you need to, but no need to get into the gory details. While breaking up is difficult to do, the conversation and how it goes is essential to determining the future of your friendship.

Breaking up is never easy, but doing it nicely works best! Did these work for you? Let us know in the comments below!

There's more happy celebrity baby news in Hollywood! What are some ways to compromise with your partner when it comes to naming your child?

Cupid's Advice:

Naming your child is exciting, but it can also be aggravating. There's a possibility that you and your partner may not agree on a name. However, Cupid has some advice to help you compromise with your partner when it comes to naming your child:

1. Ask questions and listen: Instead of telling your partner what to name the child, start to asking question to get their point of view on something. Ask your partner what is it that they really want. When they are ready to answer your questions and tell you, listen. Don't assume you know the answer; be open.

2. Be a team player: Approach the situation as a team player. Instead of blaming each other, solve the problem as a team. For instance, make a list of baby names you each like, and then swap that list to cross off any names of which you disapprove.

3. Be open-minded: Learn how to step out of your comfort zone and see your partner's perspective on things. Naming your baby is a touchy topic and can be emotional to discuss. Imagine how you'd feel if you had your heart set on a name and your partner shot it down. Baby names are usually tied up with one's identity, and when rejected by a partner, it feels like a personal rejection. Be conscious of your partner's feelings when figuring out a name for your baby.

1. Paint splatter: Art has been a creative way for many people to vent about life's experiences. Why not use it to vent about a relationship? Whether it be a glue stick, a pencil, or balloons filled with paint, grab the supplies and start creating. Art has a calming effect that allows you to take a situation and create something beautiful or meaningful. The best part is that you don't have to be a professional artist to do it.
