By Hope Ankney

In the latest celebrity news, Matthew Koma has, seemingly, sparked rumors that he and Hilary Duff have secretly tied the knot. According to UsMagazine.com, the musician referred to Duff as his “wife” in an Instagram post shared on Saturday night. In the photo, you can see the actress mid-laugh as she’s dressed to the nines. Many fans began speculating about a possible wedding ceremony, but neither party responded. Instead, Duff posted a photo to her own Instagram the same night of the two, detailing that they were attending the AdoptTogether's 2019 Baby Ball in Los Angeles.

In celebrity news, is it possible that Hilary Duff and Matthew Koma tied the knot in secret? What are some benefits to keeping your nuptials on the down-low?

Cupid's Advice:

It's not uncommon for celebrity couples to secretly get married. Their entire lives are handed to the public on a silver platter. Privacy is something they don't take for granted, so it's understandable that there are some aspects of their world that they would like to keep separate. But, this isn't just helpful for celebrity relationships. It can be just as beneficial for anyone to keep their private life... well, private. Here are some of Cupid's best relationship advice on why getting married on the down-low can actually be a good thing:

1. Filtered social media: The advancements in the visual aspect of social media has changed how we get attention from our peers. However, if you become obsessed with recognition and likes, it can negatively affect your relationship. It begins to blossom when a couple notices that they're more in love with the idea of their relationship being flaunted online than they actually are being in the relationship. Keeping your marriage private can help in keeping both of your motivations pure as you step into the next part of your lives together. It's important to note when you're in a partnership with another because you have a genuine bond versus when you love the views that social media gives you for that partnership.

2. Fewer riffs due to privacy: When you share almost every waking moment of your marriage online or with others, it hinders the relationship from having a bond that should be shared only with each other. Most spouses aren't exactly excited to know that the majority of their relationship is exposed to third parties. This can cause drama and unnecessary issues in your marriage when others know about problems or complications that are normally kept quiet.

3. Less opportunity for exes to meddle: No matter what, it seems like some exes just don't allow you to ever be happy. The only thing worse than friends or family being in your marriage's business is if an ex is meddling in it as well. This can damage your relationship if your marriage isn't built on the strongest of foundations. Disclosing information to your ex or those who know your ex can be harmful, and it should be something that isn't taken lightly. Don't allow yourself to be vulnerable, and always be wise.

1. Take a trip somewhere: Inviting everyone to a vacation spot is not always realistic. It can be costly for your guests, and Relationships can be hard when you both don't get to spend alone time together, Your conflicts can become bigger ones if you don't talk about your issues face-to-face. Cupid has some tips and tricks on how to handle time management with your love:

1. Don't accuse them of anything: If your partner is spending a lot of hours at work, you may start to think something is going on outside of that. Instead of accusing your partner of infidelity, ask them why they've been spending so much time at work lately. If your partner has a demanding job, it could be perfectly innocent. Cupid's Advice:

Kylie Jenner and Travis Scott have called quits on their celebrity relationship. Jenner and Scott may get back together, but for now, they've decided it's best for both of them to be apart. Cupid has some factors to consider before taking a break:

1. What you want: Consider what you actually want from the break. If you just want to hook up with new people perhaps you should actually break up with your partner. If you need time to rethink or rebalance then communicate with your partner that a break would be the best solution.

2. What the break means: We've all seen Friends and no one wants to be the Ross of the breakup. Clearly communicate with your partner exactly what the break will entail. Establish if you're comfortable with each other sleeping with other people. Basically, don't do what Ross did to Rachel.

Justin and Hailey prepare for their second celebrity wedding with food and family. What are some ways to incorporate family in your wedding celebration?

Cupid's Advice:

Planning a wedding is one of the most stressful events to pull off. By the time the day comes, it goes by in such a whirlwind that it's hard to keep up with everyone and everything. But, sometimes family can help in easing the chaos you might feel as everything comes together for the big day. By incorporating your family into your wedding celebration, it can feel more personal and even reduce stress or wedding jitters. Cupid has some relationship tips for both you and your partner for incorporating your family before you walk down the aisle:

1. Unique walks down the aisle: The famous Office scene where the entire cast dances down the aisle in Jim and Pam's wedding is one that has been cemented in iconic television history. Everyone has seen that clip or even other ceremonies that implemented this idea. It's a fun and easy way to incorporate your family and friends into a part of your wedding that'll be incredibly memorable. You can have one song that is playing as everyone jigs down the aisle or you can try different songs for different groups. You can give the bridesmaids and grooms a song, the parents a song, and the flower girls and ring bearer a song. It'll liven up the ceremony and make everyone feel included.

2. Musical loved one: Instead of hiring a DJ, if you or your partner have a talented family member, allow them to either open or close the wedding by singing or playing a beautiful song. It's even better if the loved one has created their own, personalized song for the occasion. It proves to be very intimate, and it can give the family member such honor to perform at your ceremony.

3. Honoring the deceased: It's always a very personal and touching part of a wedding if the bride and groom take time to honor family members and loved ones that are no longer with them. There are many ways to do this. You can ask for a moment of silence for the departed. You can have family members come light a candle out of remembrance. Or, my personal favorite, is for a tree to be planted in honor of those that have been lost. Make it an uplifting part of your ceremony where it seems like they're celebrating alongside you.

But, traveling with your partner can actually strengthen your relationship as well. If you're already packing your bags or are thinking about going off in the future with your significant other, Cupid has some relationship advice on how traveling can bring you that much closer:

1. Seeing the best and worst of your partner: Few things can quickly bring out the highs and lows in another person than traveling does. It's automatically a stressful situation if you're traveling somewhere where there's language and cultural barriers. But, it can also be the best experience when you see your partner at the height of their excitement. You're both being able to take part in something that neither of you has done before. Traveling usually shows every side of your partner, and if you can handle those highs and lows, it can create an unbreakable bond between the two of you.

2. More time to talk: It's obvious that when you're traveling there is a lot more time to talk than any other time in your relationship. You're constantly driving, flying, or waiting around. And, if you're traveling as a couple, you are the only two people you're constantly talking to. In celebrity news, even the famous worry about introducing their kids to a new partner. What are some effective ways to introduce your kids to your partner?

Cupid’s Advice:

There are some things celebrities do that aren't so much different than us. Fame doesn't always have its perks, especially when it comes to introducing your children to your newest love interest. It's something that a lot of couples worry about, as things get complicated when kids are involved. If you're stressing over having the talk with your little ones about or introducing them to your new partner, don't worry! Cupid has some parenting advice that'll help you navigate the trickiness of moving on with someone new when you're a parent:

1. Don't have your children meet every person you date:

Children rely on you for their security and stability. They tend to thrive in environments that can be built on trust and vulnerability. Having partners come in and out of your life is something that hurts a child's ability to find genuine investment within your relationships. Everyone wants to jump into inviting the date over to 'get to know' their kids, but unless it is someone you've been with that you trust being in your life for a long time, it might not be the greatest idea to have kids form a bond with them.

2. Keep the first meeting short and sweet: Going somewhere that is public is a great way to introduce your kids to your partner. Perhaps, ask them where they would like to go. Restaurants or out for ice cream are great environments for the children to relate to the new person that is being introduced to them since they are content and relaxed. Remember, meeting the kids where they are comfortable is key!

3. Talk to your kids: Having a conversation about your partner first is always a great idea before introducing your kids to them. Ask your children how they feel about you seeing a new person and what they think about you having a dating life.

Opening a dialogue can be an important aspect of your relationship with your kids, and it can help you see their perspective on the relationship before you figure out how to introduce the person to the rest of your family.

Letting everyone see the love you share with your partner is an important part of the relationship. Holding hands, stealing a kiss, and even eye contact can be signs of affection to display in public. Cupid has some ways you can get lovey dovey with your partner in public:

1. The basics: Hand holding and kissing are the universal displays of affection that can be shown by every couple. However, it is important that you and your partner discuss what is acceptable and what is not. Some people like a peck on the cheek or a lip bite rather than a French kiss in the public eye. Learn to keep it cute and concise.

The celebrity couple have been together for eight years and share a son, Angelo, together. The two plan to go their separate ways, but will raise their son in a loving environment. In celebrity divorce news, Adele has officially filed for divorce from her husband Simon. What are some ways to announce your divorce to family and friends?

Cupid's Advice:

Telling someone that you and your ex lover have decided to split is not the easiest task especially when there is family involved. Some couples live separate lives, but stay together in order to please their family members. This is not the best idea especially when you are not happy being with this person. Cupid has some relationship advice when it comes to telling your family and friends about your divorce:

1. Don't break the news at a family event: This can become awkward very quickly. You don't want to ruin a fun filled event with some bad news. Avoid making any "grand entrance" with news about a separation. You don't want to be put on the spot to answer private questions about your relationship.

2. Try not to play the blame game: Pointing fingers at why the relationship ended is the easiest way for many to avoid talking about what really happened. Even if it is the other person's fault try not to be petty about what happened. Accepting what when wrong is the first part of the healing process. Learn how to tell the story in a positive light. Use words like "this was the best decision for us" or "we've come to a mutual agreement". Not only is this mature, but this language will be best for telling important people like your children.

3. Let everyone know that you are still processing this: Whether you called it quits or your partner it's important that you take the time to process it all. You might be wondering what went wrong or how you will get over this person. The warning signals could have been there, but you didn't know it would go downhill so fast. Take your time and needed space to reflect.

Seeing the “positive” come up on a pregnancy test for many women can be very exciting. Welcoming a bundle of joy to the family can be the happiest time in a woman's life. However, some pregnancies result in a miscarriage and can leave a heavy impact behind. It's not easy to uplift a person who has just encountered something traumatic. Cupid has some advice that will help you and your partner get through this difficult time:

1. Don't expect them to tell you how they are feeling right away: Everyone has a different way of processing hurtful situations. It's important that you keep an open heart and be mindful of the situation. Avoid saying insensitive things like, “You can have another one”. Not everyone is able to conceive right away or it might be hard for them to do so. Be there for them and offer any help they will allow.
