In the latest celebrity news, UsMagazine.com reports the American Idol alum and current coach on The Voice is fighting her ex-fiancé David Ortunga for primary guardianship of their son, David Jr. According to Ortunga's attorney, he has been working to settle an "amicable parenting agreement with Ms. Hudson for several weeks now," but the estranged couple has not been able to finalize it. Hudson has previously been granted a petition for Order of Protection against her celebrity ex, citing protection for herself and for her son. The pair announced their celebrity break-up earlier this year.

This celebrity break-up seems to be getting very messy. What are some things to consider when you're splitting with your significant other and you have a child in the picture?

Cupid's Advice:

Sometimes, relationships fizzle out. While a split is always complicated and full of emotions, if you and your estranged partner have a child, there are even higher chances for issues to arise. If you are breaking up with your partner and you share kids, Cupid has some things for you to consider:

1. Be ready to co-parent: You and your partner have a shared responsibility for your kids. If you are splitting up, you should figure out how you'd like to continue raising your kids. Ideally, this should be done without the help of lawyers and a court. Figure out a system that works best for your lives and stick to it.

2. Adopt a "kids come first" mindset: Establishing this mentality is important after a split. Regardless of the differences between you and your partner, it's important to remember that your kids come first. This will help you in times of conflict and stress. Sometimes, you'll both have to swallow your pride and put on a happy face for the sake of your kids' well-being.

3. Keep it professional: Never badmouth your partner in front of your kids. No matter the situation, it's important to voice your negative opinions in private. By projecting your feelings about your ex onto your kids, you could cause long-term emotional issues for them. Let your children form their own opinions and conclusions, and make sure you're there for them when they need you.

who you've dated before?

Cupid's Advice:

Dating somebody you've dated before isn't always a bad idea, contrary to what you may have heard. If you are thinking of getting back together with a former fling, here are some advantages to consider:

1. No awkward small-talk: Let's face it – small talk is pointless, but a staple of any new relationship. (Do you actually care about the weather?) When you jump back into a relationship with somebody from the past, you've already gotten to know them and can skip the boring norms. You can move forward faster and get to the more serious stuff.

Cupid's Advice:

Post-split is a disorienting feeling. You've lost the person you spent all of your time, likely other friends, and common hobbies. For the sentimental, TV shows, music, video games, etc. that the two of you shared bring back painful memories. Figuring out what to do with yourself after a breakup is hard, but it starts with getting over your ex. Here's our dating advice for all of you who are newly single:

1. Actually feel your feelings: No one wants to feel lonely, guilty, hurt, or betrayed, but pushing all of those feelings aside will only prolong the process of moving on. Grab a friend and bawl your eyes out. Get to the gym and work-out your frustrations. Drink until feel your sorrows, purge them, and move on.

2. Cut them off: The only way to really get over your ex is to ignore them. Sounds harsh? It's worse being that guy who is stuck in the past. Delete all contact information for your ex, get out of your shared group of friends, and find new hobbies if you shared any with your ex. Finding who you are on your own starts with actually being on your own.

3. Get back out there: Ok, so one-night stands, flings, and rebounds can happen if you get back in the saddle before you're ready. Prolonging jumping back into the dating pool is just as harmful, though. Even if feel under confident, start flirting with other people until you're ready to start dating again. The fun of flirting, and how good you feel when you receive it, will help you get over your ex that much quicker.

The preview ends with Disick calling his celebrity ex "really fake" for not being honest with him. Yikes!

This celebrity news shows that these exes aren't necessarily civil all of the time. What are some parameters you can put on your relationship with your ex if you have children together?

Cupid's Advice:

Breakups can be messy. Breakups with kids can be really messy. While Kardashian and Disick try and remain civil for the sake of their three children, it's clear they face their fair share of problems. If you're having trouble with an ex, Cupid has some tips that you can implement into your life:

- 1. Kick the emotions to the curb: You must keep your frustrations and all negative feelings about your ex between the two of you. It's easy to jump to conclusions and expect the worst from your ex if you ended on bad terms and continue to have drama. Your child (or children) are the most important commitment you two share, so when they're around, get along as best as you possibly can.

2. Have a clear-cut plan: Early on into your separation or divorce, it is pivotal to have a clear and defined custody agreement. Between the two of you, decide on a visitation schedule and figure out how you will celebrate holidays and their birthdays. It won't be easy by any means, but it will really help you diffuse potential conflicts from arising.

3. Leave the new boyfriend/girlfriend out: Introducing a new person into your child's life can be complicated. That way, you and your ex can learn how to co-parent maturely and avoid playing the blame game with each other.

Cupid's Advice:

Break-ups are almost always rough. While it may seem challenging to heal, it's important to maintain a strong sense of self. Cupid has some tips that you can implement into your life to help keep your past from dictating the future:

1. Respect the past: Your past relationship ended for a reason. You don't have to forget the good times you had. Respect the relationship for all that it was, because it probably was right for you at that point in your life.

2. Be present: If you spend your time dwelling on what used to be, it'll be super challenging to find happiness in another relationship. Learn from your past self and relationship, and fully embrace yourself for who you are presently.

Parenting Tips: 5 Tips for Co-Parenting

By Rachel Sparks

As if being a parent isn't enough stress, actively parenting with an ex can be a high stress situation that seems to have no silver lining. You ended your relationship with that person for a reason, yet you have to find a way to keep things not only civil, but open and respectful for the sake of your child(ren). How can you rock co-parenting as well as celebrity

exes like Drew Barrymore and Will Kopelman?

Check out Cupid's parenting tips for co-parenting like a rockstar!

Cupid's Advice:

Remember that even in a marriage, people make sacrifices for their children. Being a parent is about focusing on the needs of your children before your own. Arguments, even among couples living together, should not be in front of children. A lot of the practices you had as a couple parenting together are still the same now that you co-parent with your ex, with a few additions. Here's our parenting advice:

1. Pick your battles: We've all heard this, but it's worth a reminder. Heck, put a stick note on your mirror with this on it every morning, it's that good. As much as your ex may grate your nerves, is every battle worth fighting with them? The end goal is the same for everyone, including the children and the exes: everyone wants to have a good time with their family. Is that little insult really worth the fight?

Related Link: Former Celebrity Couple Kate Hudson & Matt Bellamy Reunite for Son's Birthday

2. Share info about the kids: Too many times one parent stops communicating with the other. Remember even the non-custodial parent wants to know how the kids are doing in school. Share important things like doctor visits, grades, and important dates to ensure both parents know what's going on with their kids. The children will appreciate it more than they will ever tell you.

3. Don't use your kids as messengers: Kids shouldn't be asking who they're spending the holiday with, if they can get money for school clothes, or if they're in trouble for their bad grades. Basically, kids shouldn't be the ones delivering this news. Always communicate with your ex, even if you dread it. Let the kids be kids.

4. Respect the kid's time: Look, as parents we tend to be pretty nosy. Ultimately, we want to make sure our children are having a good time, but are also safe and learning the best lessons. If you don't necessarily trust an ex (they are an ex for a reason) it's normal to want to pry into the time the kids had with their other parent. Don't. That's special time they have and that should be respected. If there is anything wrong, more than likely, they will let you know on their own.

5. Single parent means alone time: There's a lot of challenges to being a single parent. Even if you do remarry, there's a whole new set of challenges. Co-parenting offers a unique opportunity to have the highly coveted alone time, something so allusive to most parents. Enjoy the precious moments you have to yourself while the kids are with your ex. You will value yourself and your time more, the time you do have with your children, and likely even your ex for allowing you to have time alone.

It's hard to keep the peace when you have a bad history with someone's ex or current partner. Here are some tactics you can use for less drama:

1. Have an understand and positive mindset: Paranoia and jealousy often happen if a relationship didn't begin on good terms. Try understanding where the other person is coming from and set the tone. If the other person is making cruel remarks then try being the bigger person. If you are talking badly about the other person then stop and reflect on how this will only make things worse.

It’s tough.” Higgins went on to share that his heartbreak over celebrity ex Bushnell is still “very fresh” because he truly thought that, “[she] was the one.” However, Higgins is also the first to acknowledge that the Hollywood relationship had real problems. “Mutually Lauren and I saw that life was getting more difficult,” Higgins admitted, “I would say the joy that we felt toward our relationship at the beginning was—for some reason—slipping away.” He confessed there was “no real saving or redemption to be done” and that ultimately he felt that their split was “for the best.” Regardless, Higgins has hope for both of them, even if it’s as individuals, instead of a celebrity couple and stated, “I am a better man today because of Lauren and because of our relationship.”

This celebrity break-up proves that when a relationship becomes more work than pleasure, it’s time to let go. What are some ways to know your relationship has run its course?

Cupid’s Advice:

It can be tough to know when a relationship is really over, but here are the top three ways that you can be sure:

1. When you no longer see a future together: A good way to figure out if what you're experiencing is a rough patch or really the end is to analyze whether or not you can still imagine a future with your partner. Can you picture a time when realistically things get better and you as a couple move past whatever it is that's causing stress on your relationship? Or is this conflict destined to be a part of your relationship forever? Your answer can help you determine whether or not it's time to move forward or move on.

2. When the love is gone: If you genuinely feel as if you've fallen out of love with your partner, then it's time to move on. If the thought of leaving provides you with more relief than you won't have to fake it any more than sadness, you can be sure that ending the relationship is the best thing for both of you. Don't try to force love or affection after a certain point. If you're not feeling it, you're just not. Let go.

3. When you feel trapped constantly: If your relationship has been reduced to nothing but a ball and chain around your ankle, think long and hard about whether or not you want it to continue. If you feel that the only thing your partner does is hold you back, consider the fact that you both might be able to go farther without each other. Sometimes the most loving thing you can do for another person is set them free knowing that both of you will actually be better off without one another, even if at first the split is painful.

This celebrity news has us rooting for this mysterious couple. What are some ways to keep your relationship away from prying eyes?

Cupid’s Advice:

In today’s world, keeping a relationship on the down low can be a bit tricky. Here are the top tips for keeping things between you and your significant other private:

1. Stay away from social media: If you’re looking to keep your relationship private and away from prying eyes, the first step is to make sure your social media is in line with that goal. If you’re constantly snapping romantic pics of your partner and posting them on the web, people are going to put two and two together. Still want the experience of sharing your special moments, but want to control who gets to see those posts? Make sure your privacy settings on apps like Facebook and Instagram are set in such a way that you can limit who gets to take a peek into your private life.

2. Practice polite shutdowns: We’ve all come face to face with a nosy person in our lifetime who is way too interested in the intimate minutiae of our private lives. If someone is trying to press you for more information than you're willing to give about your romantic relationship or anything else, practice kindly but firmly indicating that that information is private and you'd like to change the topic. For instance, try something non-confrontational but clear at first like, "Thanks for your interest, but honestly I usually like to keep those details private. Would you mind if we talked about something else?" And if the person keeps pressing? There's no harm in simply saying, "Like I said, that's not really something I want to discuss right now," and extracting yourself from the conversation.

3. Choose your friends wisely: If you're trying to keep your relationship more private, be mindful of the people with whom you share the details of your life with. If you have a friend who loves spreading the latest gossip and posting photos of people without their knowledge or permission, then you might want to think twice about sharing news of your relationship with them. Focus on finding the people in your life who will respect your wishes to keep things quiet and make sure before you go on a double date or take your significant other to meet your friends that you're sure everyone there is willing to help you keep your relationship private.

This Bachelor couple has decided on a celebrity break-up. What are some ways to know you’ve done all you can to salvage your relationship?

Cupid’s Advice:

When it comes to working out a rocky relationship, things can get tricky, and sometimes it’s just time to call it quits. Here are Cupid’s top tips on how to know when it’s time to throw in the towel:

- 1. When you’ve tried talking it out... and failed: If you’ve sat down together, maybe even with a third party like a therapist, and honestly tried to work out your problems with little to no progress, that’s a serious sign that you may have reached the final hours of your relationship. Of course, working through your problems takes time and effort, but if you feel like you've really committed to spending time working on the problem and nothing has been changing or getting better, it may be time to take a step back and take a long, hard look at whether or not this is a relationship you feel you should stay in.

Related Link: ‘The Bachelor’ Celebrity Couple Lauren Bushnell & Ben Higgins’ Relationship ‘Ain’t Perfect’

2. When they're in love with someone else: If you feel as if your partner has some serious feelings for someone other than yourself and they're distracting them from being in a committed relationship with you, that's a serious problem. If your partner is in love with someone else (assuming you're in a monogamous relationship) that's a major deterrent to the success of your relationship. It may be time to acknowledge that it's time to let go and let you both move on to something even better than what you have right now.

3. When all that's left is fighting: Every couple has rough patches and seasons of their life together when they argue more than others. But if it seems that you two are constantly locked in a battle for the upper hand, and can't even spend any amount of time together without a big fight blowing up, it's time to call it quits. Let each other go, and let yourselves find someone else who you won't be in constant conflict with.

Celebrity Break-Up: Demi Lovato & Guilherme 'Bomba' Vasconcelos Split

By Noelle Downey

There's trouble in paradise for one celebrity couple this week! According to UsMagazine.com, Demi Lovato and MMA fighter boyfriend, Guilherme "Bomba" Vasconcelos, have officially called it quits. The celebrity exes first started seeing one another in July of last year, shortly after Lovato and long-time boyfriend Wilmer Valderrama had their celebrity break-up. Although Lovato and Vasconcelos were "just having fun" a source close to Lovato confessed, the two rekindled their Hollywood relationship in January of 2017 and have since been verbal on social media about their celebrity love story.

Lovato gushed over her celebrity relationship to TV talk show host Ellen in April, saying, "I'm very happy. Life is really good." So what happened to break apart this famous celebrity couple? A source close to the exes claims, "It wasn't a dramatic split. Bomba is a good guy, but the relationship just ran its course."

This relationship has ended up a celebrity break-up. What are some ways to know your relationship is done for good?

Cupid's Advice:

Break-ups are never fun, but Cupid is here with the top tips on how to know when your relationship has officially run its course:

1. When the end feels inevitable: If you feel as though you're just counting down the days until something snags and you guys finally have the final fight that leads to the demise of your couplehood, it may be already time to call it quits. Relationships generally shouldn't feel like they have a looming expiration date, and if you feel as though any good times you have are constantly overshadowed with your gut-feeling that this relationship isn't going to last, then you should trust your instincts.

Related Link: Celebrity News: Demi Lovato Supports Rumored BF Guilherme Vasconcelos at MMA Fight

2. When neither of you is upset: If you feel as though your relationship has deflated to the point that neither of you is particularly invested in it continuing, then do yourself both a favor and cut it off so you can go find something that really fills you both with passion. If you can broach the topic of your break-up without either of you feeling like you're really losing anything of value, then it's probably time to cut the cord and get on with your lives, separately.

Related Link: Celebrity News: Joe Jonas 'Likes' Pic of Ex Demi Lovato with On-Again Boyfriend Guilherme 'Bomba' Vasconcelos

3. When you feel consistently unhappy: If you're in a relationship where you feel as though you're always waiting for the "good time" and the moment when you'll really feel like you and your partner are clicking, then take a step back and consider why that is. It could be that your relationship isn't really what you want it to be, and that could be because of the person you're in that relationship with. Remember, you don't need to have a million reasons to leave someone, you just need one good one, and being consistently unhappy in your relationship is a great reason to call it quits permanently.

This celebrity news has us troubled. What are some ways to deal with a partner who gets into legal trouble?

Cupid's Advice:

There's no way around it, if you've ever had a partner or ex who got involved in some troubling illegal activities, that's bound to lead to tension in your relationship and in your lives. Here are Cupid's top tips on how to deal with a partner in legal trouble:

1. Consider the offense: Of course, when it comes to a brush with the law, there are varying degrees of legal offenses. You should react differently based on whether your partner has, for example, been caught planning and executing elaborate heists or shoplifting petty items at a drugstore. So first things first, when a partner gets involved in some kind of crime, stop and consider the offense. It's important to recognize the nuances of legality and while many crimes should give you serious pause about continuing the relationship, others may be something you can work through as a couple.

2. Make sure you and your children are safe: Of course, sometimes the answer is clear already. If a partner has been charged with violent tendencies, domestic abuse, or owning a violent weapon and you feel that you are in some kind of danger, act immediately. Go to the police and express your concerns, and then reach out to family and friends to help you through this difficult time, whether that be by staying at your place or opening their home to you so you have a place you can go where you can feel safe and secure. The first priority in situations like that should be making sure that you and any children you have are safe so that you can start re-building your lives without the negative influence of your ex.

3. Talk to your partner: If the situation is such that you are surprised by the alleged crimes your partner is accused of, try getting a moment to talk to them. Many times if the offense is not major, you will have the opportunity to pay bail and speak to your partner as a “free” individual once more. Have an open conversation with your partner and ask them why they did what they did. Be honest about how hurt and betrayed you feel by their dishonest actions and then figure out if there’s a way you can work through it together, if that’s what you want.
