Custody battles are hard times for any family. They can put enormous stress on not only the parents involved, but the children as well. Here are some of Cupid’s tips to make sure that custody battles don’t affect your children:

1. Remind them that it is not their fault: Some children may think that their parents splitting up may be because of something they did. 2. Tell them you love them: While you and your former partner may not be on good terms anymore, make sure your children know that no matter the outcome, it does not mean you don’t love them any less. Even if your children won’t be living with you after the fact, have them know that you will always be with them in their hearts, even if you are not able to be there physically.

stopping after baby number one:

1. Your children learn how to socialize and share with others:

When you have a second child, both will have to learn to get along and share with each other because they don't have much of a choice. Siblings are in each other's lives all day, every day for the first few years of their lives. This social interaction will help them when it is time to go to school and start making friends.

3. You are an expert now: With baby number one you had so much to learn, and you had to learn it fast. You disinfected everything, washed your hands so often they were like sandpaper, and packed half of the household whenever you left the house. However, with baby #2 you already know what you're doing because your first child taught you to be an expert, so you know what's coming with sleepless nights, feeding, and everything else involved with having a baby.

a custody battle. If both parents agree to be reasonable, then a custody agreement can be made without ending up in a conflict. Cupid has some advice to keep things amicable:

1. Get informed: A good place to start working towards an amicable custody agreement is to become informed in your state's custody laws. Learn what "a child's best interest" means based on the laws in your state because that is what the court will base their decisions on when it comes to the custody of your children.

2. Ask your family attorney questions: Your children are the most important people in a custody case, so don't be afraid to ask your attorney lots of questions, and do not let them pacify you with vague answers. It can be tough to know when you’re truly ready to marry your partner. Cupid has some advice:

1. When participating in your partner’s hobbies doesn’t feel like a chore: If you are with the person you are truly in love with, and meant to spend your life with then you will not find spending time with them, doing things they love exhausting. Instead, you will pleasure in the joy it brings them to share their passion(s) with you. Marriage is a lifetime committment, so you want to know you will enjoy spending your life with your partner.

Cupid’s Advice:

Pregnancy difficulties leave broken hearts and scars for both parties in a relationship. Remember to support one another during this devastating time, without trying to find fixes that will only prolong the pain. Cupid has some advice:

1. Understand there is no quick fix: Losing a child or finding out you are unable to get pregnant is a devastating loss for anyone trying to become a parent. When someone we love is in pain, the knee-jerk reaction is to find a way to fix the problem, but there is no quick fix for a loss this painful. Like the loss of any loved one, only time will bring healing, so give yourself and your partner time to grieve and the healing will come naturally.

Related Link: Celebrity Baby News: Shawn Johnson is Expecting a Year and a Half After Miscarriage

2. Do not jump into discussing having other children: When a mother has a miscarriage, to her she just lost a unique child, and that child is irreplaceable. It may seem like telling her that she can always have another baby offers reassurance, but it will likely only add to her pain and frustration. Instead, just support her by showing and telling her that you love her and staying by her side as long as she needs you there.

3. Be supportive and lift her back up: When a woman goes through a miscarriage or learns she is unable to get pregnant and have children, it often leads her to thoughts that she is broken. Whether she expresses this feeling out loud or not, it is common, and she needs her partner to be there for her. Hold her, love her, tell her she is not to blame and that it is not her fault.

A new baby in the family is an exciting time for you and your partner. Here are a few ways that being new parents can bring you closer together:

1. You'll learn to lean on each other more: Sleepless nights with a crying baby, frustration over breastfeeding, learning to cope with new feelings that come along with having a new baby...
