What are some ways to get out and meet potential partners?

Cupid's Advice:

Not all of us can land a career as an actor, so us "normal"

folk have to use other methods. Cupid has some advice:

1. Join a class: Enroll in a class that appeals mainly to the opposite sex. For instance, take a cooking class if you're a guy or boxing lessons if you're a woman.

2. Online dating: They might not be for everyone, but you'll never know unless you try it. You might even end up finding The One on a dating site.

3. Socialize: Attend parties or join an organization. Going out in the world and communicating is the best way to find a partner.

Most Romantic Movies of 2010

By Erika Mionis

2010 has been a big year for movies. Sequels like Iron Man 2 and Toy Story 3 have ruled at the box office, while animated films like Despicable Me and How to Train Your Dragon have made their marks as well. Those aside, the year was also particularly crammed with many a chick flick. From romantic comedies (When in Rome, Knight and Day) to romantic dramas (Dear John, Remember Me), nearly all of the movies have had easily identifiable themes and laughs that we learned from and enjoyed. Out of all the great romantic movies we have seen this year, the following have had lessons that effortlessly apply in the real world:

Easy A: This romantic comedy had us rolling in the aisles. Emma Stone masterfully portrays Olive Penderghast, the teenage protagonist whose sarcasm is as razor-sharp as it is endearing. After pretending to lose her virginity to help out a friend, Olive's reputation begins a downward spiral as nasty rumors circulate around her school. Eventually, her childhood crush helps her regain her reputation and her happiness. Though based in high school, the film manages to support an overarching theme; the idea that those who really care about you will stick by you, no matter what.

Blue Valentine: This drama will have you on the edge of your seat. While the basic romance in this film is not immediately detectable, this tale of two troubled lovers is one of the most heart-wrenching films we've seen in a while. The film follows the now-broken couple of Dean (Ryan Gosling) and Cindy (Michelle Williams) over different points in their relationship. MTV's NextMovie.com calls the film, "A meditation on the nature of romantic relationships that's undeniably depressing yet incredibly insightful." It's safe to say that the flick is not a cheerful one, but it does present a viable warning. Be cautious when entering a relationship. Don't progress too quickly, and thoroughly examine your values before making a serious commitment.

Eclipse: The third installment in the Twilight Saga was also the most successful, both with critics and at the box office. Bella Swan (Kristen Stewart) is forced to choose between her steadfast vampire boyfriend, Edward Cullen (Robert Pattinson), and her best friend-turned-new flame Jacob Black (Taylor Lautner). The film gave us an important lesson about the dangers of jealousy (especially if you're caught in a tumultuous love triangle between a shirtless werewolf and a sparkling vampire). The movie is undeniably entertaining, and the sheer gorgeousness of the cast left us reeling.

The Twilight Saga's new movie, Eclipse, opens on Wednesday, June 30. The third installment of the series involves Bella (Kristen Stewart) in the middle of a constant struggle between her love for vampire, Edward (Robert Pattinson) and best friend, werewolf Jacob (Taylor Lautner). Add the action of a redheaded vampire, Victoria, who wants Bella dead to the mix, and you have the perfect summer blockbuster.

Is there a way to avoid being in love with two people?

Cupid's Advice:

Bella, a mortal with her heart being pulled in two separate directions, finds the life choices she makes can have devastating consequences. Cupid has some helpful pointers to help avoid a love triangle:

1. Focus on one: By staying involved with the love of your life, you have less of a chance of adding another love to the mix.

2. Discover what's missing: If you find your hearts tempted towards loving another, it might be because your current relationship has something lacking. Talk to your partner to figure out what's missing.

3. Love is what it is: If you've done everything in your power to prevent finding spark outside of your relationship, but still find yourself caught between two hearts, you need to make a decision for one or the other, and stick with it.
