Cupid's Advice:

In a perfect world, your friends will love your partner as much as you do. Unfortunately, your friends may not be so supportive of your relationship. It can be hard to navigate a relationship when you don't feel supported. If your friends dislike your partner, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Hear your friends out: Your friends (hopefully!) have your best interests in mind, so give them the benefit of the doubt. Give them a chance to explain why they don't like your partner. They might see something unhealthy in your relationship that you couldn't. Even if you end up disagreeing, your friends will appreciate you listening to their worries.

2. Don't force a friendship: As much as we want our friends to love our partner, it's not possible for everyone to always get along. If your friends dislike your partner, you shouldn't force a friendship between the two parties. Accept that you'll miss some group hangs with your friends to spend time with your partner. Accept that your partner may not want to hang out with your friends and that you can't force them to tag along.

3. Set boundaries: Ask both your friends and your partner to respect your choices and to refrain from talking negatively about each other in front of you. Make sure to spend time with your friends and your partner, even if that time doesn't overlap. Don't let one side prevent you from seeing the other. If your friends or your partner won't respect your choices, it may be time to let them go.

Cupid’s Advice:

You and your partner won’t always see eye-to-eye, but there are some things that are harder to compromise on. If you’ve recently realized you and your partner have different moral values and don’t know how to approach that, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Understand where they’re coming from: It’s easier to understand your partner’s opinions if you understand why they think that way. Consider how they grew up: heir family, their neighborhood, their education. Have productive conversations with your partner to better understand their values.

2. Find common ground: Even if you and your partner are disagreeing about a topic overall, there is bound to be something you agree on. Try to focus on these agreements and don’t force each other to change. You’re likely trying to both educate each other, but that doesn’t mean it will change how either of you think.

3. Know your boundaries: It's important to communicate, but there's only so much you can compromise on. If you feel like you and your partner are disagreeing on something that's fundamentally important to you, you'll need to think about how this will affect your future relationship. If this disagreement is really a deal-breaker, it isn't going to go away.

Cupid's Advice:

It's impossible to agree with your partner on everything. However, differences in political and social beliefs can feel harder to find a compromise. If you're not sure how to talk to your partner when you disagree on these views, Cupid has some advice for you:

1. Acknowledge each other's views: You don't have to agree, but you both need to understand where the other is coming from. Acknowledging and understand your partner's views will let you understand their thought process. Being able to have healthy conversations will prevent misunderstanding their views.

2. Be specific: Focus on the issues you're discussing. Don't diminish each other's beliefs to political parties or candidates. Even if you're registered to different parties, there are still issues you might have similar views about. Having pointed discussions about the issues you care about will prevent you or your partner from generalizing.

3. Agree to disagree: It's almost impossible to change people's beliefs. You need to decide when it's time to give yourselves space to disagree about topics. Some topics can easily be left alone. Other topics that you're passionate about may be harder. If you're unable to comfortably leave these disagreements with your partner, it may be time to consider how these disagreements affect you and your relationship.

In Lindsay's weekly blog on UsMagazine.com, she wrote about Kufrin's date with Hortsman, saying, "After watching this date, I really hope Becca picks Blake because it is going to be really hard for the other guy to get passed how deep and expressive her feelings are for Blake." Lindsay also wrote that she thinks "It is clear that Blake is truly in love with Becca and she is smitten with him. It is clear he does not want to lose her. So it is also clear that he is insecure about the fact that there are two other men in her life. This is a very real moment for me. I appreciated that he was vulnerable enough to express that to her rather than hiding behind a smile." Lindsay also appreciated when Hortsman said "I look for reasons to stay and not reasons to leave." Regarding Kufrin's date with contestant Garrett Yrigoyen, Lindsay said, "He tells Becca he loves her and I have to say I did not feel it. I heard the man, but I did not feel him. also just doesn't seem like a smoother operator so there's that." Lindsay also said, "I feel like there is something we are missing from Garrett."

Cupid's Advice:

Having trouble knowing if you're choosing the right partner? Cupid has some ways to help you know if it's right:

1. You only have eyes for them: If you are really in love with someone, then you should only be interested in being with them and no one else. If you think you've got a wandering eye or budding feelings for someone else, then it's probably not right to stay with your partner. They deserve honesty and if you're not feeling it, they might not be the right person for you.
