Cupid's Advice:

Relationships come with many obstacles, and unfortunately, family opposition sometimes plays a huge part. When your parents don't support your relationship there are a few ways you can get past their opposition and keep your relationship strong. Cupid has some advice to keep your relationship strong even if your parents don't support you:

1. Respect your parents: You may not agree with your parents' disapproval of your relationship, but remember they are the people who raised you. They relied on their values and beliefs to raise you and help you become the person you are. Their concern is another sign of their love. You don't have to leave your relationship because of their opinion, but try not to start an argument or be disrespectful.

Cupid's Advice:

When falling in love there's no guarantee. The possibility of pain is around every corner. However there are tell tale signs that your partner is the real deal. Here is dating advice on how to tell if they're leading you on:

1. Listen to your gut: First things first, always listen to your gut. If there's a nagging feeling from something primal in your body, it's probably right. Do a little investigative work into what instinct is telling you.

2. Listen to what they're really saying: If you find yourself in a Haley situation, where your partner is saying 'I love you' but keeping the door to others open: actions speak louder than words. Some people will say anything to keep something good around, but remember that the way someone treats you is the true test to if they value you.

3. Listen to others: So your friends and family raise an eyebrow every time you tell a story about your flailing significant other. Clearly they think this partner's not good enough for you. If their reasons go beyond the shallow (ie: money, looks, etc.) then put stock into what they're saying. They want someone to treat you right even more than you do.
