Cupid's Advice:

There's something about love that just makes colors brighter, the world happier, and your life the most magical part of the universe. There's nothing sweeter than finding someone that makes you feel like you are worthy of a lifetime of love. But, sometimes it isn't so easy to distinguish whether or not this person is "the one" for you. If you're in a relationship that you're thinking could be your soulmate, Cupid has some relationship tips for figuring out if your partner is "the one" or not:

1. They bring out the best parts of you: The right relationships should always show the absolute best parts of who you are. They are meant to bring out what others can't, and if you feel like your partner does that, it might be a good indication that they're the one for you. But, remember! Make sure you bring out the best in them, as well.

2. Your friends and family have never seen you happier: Those closest to you know you better than you know yourself. They know when you're sad, or when you're angry, or even when you're happy. If you've gotten comments from friends and family that detail how much happier or how much you glow since being in this relationship, you might have found "the one" for you. You should never be in a relationship with someone that doesn't make you the happiest you've ever felt.

'Revenge' Star Josh Bowman Says People Shouldn't Care About His Personal Life

How do you keep gossip from interfering with your relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

The circumstances of your relationship may attract undeserved gossip. It's important you don't let your love life get sabotaged by malicious slander. Act fast as a united front and you should crush your opposition. In the game of thrones, you either win or you die. And in the game of love, you either win or you cry. In both, having a strong ally can go a long way:

1. Develop trust with your partner: If you think your relationship is hanging off the grape vine, don't let your partner be the last one to find out. Transparency and direct communication can go a long way to show your significant other your devotion. If they're under attack, assure them of your allegiance.

2. Confront rumours together: If your personal life is being poisoned by rumours, maybe sunlight is the best disinfectant. Get everything out in the open together. Confront rumours as a team, and at least you'll demonstrate the strength of your relationship.

3. Don't sweat the small stuff: Gossiping is a popular pastime, and nobody avoids it completely. It's hard to live by the mantra of sticks and stones, but at least you avoid some minor emotional bruising. If people are just talking about your relationship, it might not be a bad thing. Just establish to yourself and others what is acceptable.

Is it OK to date a co-worker?

Cupid’s Advice:

When you spend so much time at work, it’s easy to develop crushes every now and then. If you decide to act on them, however, things can get a little tricky. Cupid has some tips:

1. Decide if it's worth it: There's no point in indulging in a short-term fling with a co-worker, because the negative after-effects way outweigh the benefits. However, if you can really see a future with one of your co-workers, it's worth risking the potential for awkward and hurtful post-breakup sightings.

2. Read up on company policy: Whatever you do, don't break any policies or procedures at your place of work. Make sure to read up on the guidelines for inter-company relationships, as they vary from company to company. Follow the rules, because it's not worth damaging your career.

3. Keep it low-key: If you do decide to begin dating a someone you work with, it's important to downplay your relationship at the office. The last thing you need are your other co-workers talking behind your back about inappropriate behavior.
