Cupid's Advice:

When your partner is going through a loss or disappointment, it is part of your relationship duty to help them get through this tough time together. Empathy is key when it comes to relationships. Cupid has some ideas on how to help give solace to your partner:

1. Be present: This may seem obvious, but sometimes people have the tendency to flee when bad circumstances arise. Be there for your partner, and listen to everything that they have to say. Instead of trying to change how they are feeling, simply listen and be there for them. Let them vent, and give them copious amounts of love.

2. Distract them: Once you have given your partner time to let out how they are feeling, make efforts to try and shift the energy. Think of some things you can do that would be special for your partner: cook their favorite dinner, watch their favorite movie together, or go out for a fun date night.

3. Be okay with space: Everyone copes differently. If your partner is the type of person who needs time to themselves in order to get over a disappointment, let them have that. Try not to bombard them while trying to help when they just need some space to themselves. Sometimes it is hard to tell if your partner truly wants space or if they do want you to comfort them. Really try to listen to your partner and get a feel for what they need.

Also, never underestimate the power of hugs!

Cupid's Advice:

It takes a good amount of maturity and open-mindedness to be able to co-exist with your ex in a healthy manner without any hard feelings. It's so important to make it work for your kids, and getting along helps with the process. Even if you don't share children together, it is still possible to build a friendship with your ex after a break-up. Cupid has some advice:

1. Don't doubt the break-up: If you are going to commit to being friends with your ex, then that is exactly what you have to do. Get it through your mind that this is no longer a person that you look at in a romantic way. They are your friend. With that said, you both may need some mourning time before you begin to form a friendship. Allow that time for yourselves before forcing things. Once you do venture down the path of friendship, try not to get so close that you begin to doubt that you broke-up in the first place. If it is meant to be, it will be, and you can make that judgement call along the way. That being said, try to stick to just being friends again at first.

2. Accept the new relationship: Don't go into the friendship with your ex with the same expectations that you had when you were in a relationship with them. It is going to be different. You won't spend as much time together and the way you interact is going to be altered. Don't get hung up on the past and long for that relationship. Rather, embrace this new pleasant friendship that you have formed.

3. Go into it with a positive attitude: This is the key for everything. If you keep your mind focused on the fact that you are excited to have this healthy new friendship with your ex, then that is what will occur. If you litter your mind with doubt that this won't work out or you feed into the disapproving thoughts of others, you will become consumed with looking for a reason to make it not work. Stay positive!

Celebrity News: Larry Nassar Sentenced to 175 Years In Prison in Sexual Abuse Case

By Jessica Gomez

In latest celebrity news, Larry Nassar, former USA Gymnastics doctor, has been sentenced to 175 years in prison in his sexual abuse case, according to UsMagazine.com.com. Nassar appeared in court on Wednesday, January 25 for this sentencing hearing. More than 150 victims came forward to describe the abuse and manipulation they endured from him. Nassar said the following before his sentencing: "Your words these past several days have had a significant emotional effect on myself," he said, speaking to his victims. "I recognize that what I'm feeling pales in comparison to the pain, trauma and emotional destruction that all of you have felt. There are no words to describe the depth and breadth of how sorry I am for what has occurred. I will carry your words with me for the rest of my days." However, last week he said that the painful recalls of the women he abused are harmful to his health. The judge dismissed his statement, saying, "You may find it harsh that you are here listening. But nothing is as harsh as what your victims endured for thousands of hours at your hands."

This celebrity news has our hearts heavy that so many women were abused. What are some ways to take action if you feel you've been abused?

Cupid's Advice:

Every 98 seconds, an American is sexually assaulted. Nine out of 10 victims are female, and one out of every six American women has been the victim of an attempted or completed rape in her lifetime – every eight minutes, that victim is a child. Meanwhile, only six out of every 1,000 perpetrators will end up in prison. These statistics are from RAINN, and they only include cases in United States. Sexual violence is a horrific issue all over the globe. Cupid has some advice on how to fight all sorts of sexual violence including sexual abuse, sexual assault, and rape:

1. Do not blame yourself: Many women believe that they could have done something differently to avoid what happened to them. Blaming yourself only perpetuates rape culture. It is not okay for anyone to touch anyone that doesn't want to be touched. Women have harmed themselves emotionally and physically after facing sexual violence. Victims must brave through their trauma and know that the only person to blame is the abuser.

2. Don't be afraid, speak up: If you stay quiet, your abuser will get away with their vicious act. Some women just want to forget that it happened, and so they stay silent and carry on with their lives. This approach does not work for many, and it for sure will not stop your abuser from doing it to someone else. Reach out to authority figures if you've experienced sexual violence. It's time that all victims come forward with their stories in order to fight these heinous crimes that have been occurring globally, since the dawn of time.

3. Ask for help: There is no shame in reaching out for help. Therapy and support groups are there to help victims. Having friends and family as support is also important. The only realistic expectations you should have should not be for anyone other than yourself. It is upsetting though if your partner's parents don't approve of you and your relationship. Don't worry- Cupid is here to help with some tips on how to put your best self forward to potentially make a better impression with your partner's parents:

1. Find out activities they like: Talk to your significant other and find out some things that their parents are into. Maybe boating, cooking, going on walks, etc. Then, reach out to them to do one of their favorite activities with them. This will seem like less of a "kiss-up" move since you're not buying them anything, you are just simply creating a comfortable situation for them to truly get to know your amazing self!

2. Be blunt if they are: If your partner's parents really make it clear that they are not a fan of you, be blunt and ask them sincerely what you can do in order to gain their trust. Communication is key. Ask and then make efforts to do what they feel is necessary as long as it is reasonable and does not interfere with changing who you truly are.

Their parents cannot be too upset with the fact that their child is getting the love and care that they deserve.

Now, this celebrity wedding has been confirmed. We have another celebrity wedding to look forward to!

Michelle Williams has kept her upcoming celebrity wedding news under wraps. What are some reasons to keep your relationship on the down-low?

Cupid's Advice:

Relationships are usually between two individuals. It gets complicated sometimes when other people try to interfere. Sometimes it's beneficial, but other times it's better to just keep your business between you and your significant other. Cupid has some reasons why you could be keeping your relationship on the down-low:

1. Not everyone will be happy for you: The public may judge as people are getting into relationships very soon after the end of a previous relationship. As long as you are happy with your partner, that is all that matters and you don't owe reasoning to anyone else.

2. Less people will interfere: Sometimes you just need time for yourself. By keeping your relationship on the down-low, you can minimize unwanted opinions about how you are conducting your life. Guidance is great, but true personal growth comes from making your own mistakes from decisions within.

3. The breakup is easier: When getting into a relationship after previous tragic events in life, it is sometimes harder to keep a steady relationship. Instead of having multiple people trying to keep up with your status, it is easier to just do your own thing and if relationships end, less gossip will arise because many people won't know about it in the first place.

things under wraps can work in your favor. There's more than just a baby bump to think about hiding until you're ready to share the news. Check out our parenting advice to get you through your pregnancy secrets:

1. The new diet: Once you find out you're pregnant, your diet is going to start changing. Cupid's Advice:

If you're trying to build a lasting relationship with your partner, impressing their family will need to be a priority eventually. It's intimidating.
