Celebrity loves Riley Keough and Ben Smith-Peterson have celebrity wedding but delay the honeymoon. What are some advantages of taking some time between your honeymoon and wedding?

Cupid's Advice:

Some things in life are worth the wait, and there are indeed some perks to waiting a little bit before departing on your honeymoon. You get to enjoy some time as husband and wife in the real world, finish planning the vacation and spend time with your loved ones before taking off. It's like the saying goes, "All good things come to those wait." Cupid has some tips:

1. Time spent with family: One of the perks of taking some time between your honeymoon and wedding is that you and your new spouse can spend a little time with your family and friends before being whisked away. Sometimes when people leave for their honeymoon right away, they don't get a chance to talk with their relatives for as long as they'd like. Have a get together with your families, look at wedding pictures and talk about the upcoming trip!

2. Reality sinks in: It will most likely feel like you and your partner are in a fairytale after tying the knot. An added bonus to waiting a little while before departing on your honeymoon is that the reality has time to really sink in. You'll probably need someone to pinch you to believe it's real life, but that's part of the fun. Take the time to enjoy this newlywed status. Yes, you're really husband and wife!

3. Devour the details: When you plan a wedding, there are a million things going on at once. When you're putting together the ceremony and reception, it's difficult to squeeze in the time to plan the honeymoon and all of the necessary details. Take this time now before you take off to plan all of the little details that you couldn't focus on before. Go shopping for your vacation and pick up things you think you'll need. Do some research on where you are going and book reservations for activities. Make the most of it, and pay attention to your special itinerary.

Alex Pettyfer and Riley Keough Are Back Together

Again

By April Littleton

Riley Keough was seen with her ex-fiance, Magic Mike actor Alex Pettyfer, at the L.A. premiere screening of Lee Daniels' The Butler. "There was definitely warmth between Riley and Alex. They were laughing together and smiling at each other," an onlooker told UsMagazine.com. Another eyewitness reported seeing the duo "holding hands" in the VIP area. The couple first appeared together in October 2011. Six months later, Keough stepped out with an engagement ring, but before the year was up, the lovebirds called off the wedding.

How do you know when it's time to give your ex a second chance?

Cupid's Advice:

Lately, you've been hanging out around town with a certain ex of yours. You can't quite figure out what it is about this person, but you find yourself reconsidering the possibility of you two being an item again. Would getting back together be a mistake or a decision you'll never regret? Cupid can help:

1. Acceptance: If you've already accepted what happened between the two of you in the past, you might be ready to start fresh. You can't reminisce over the old times. You have to acknowledge what went wrong in your relationship and have the ability to move on from it. If you're thinking about becoming a couple again, there's no need to hold on to any anger or guilt. You want to start things off positive. Don't pick up the relationship where it left off. The two of you won't last if you continue to make the same mistakes.

2. Forgiveness: Accepting the situation that happened between you and your ex won't happen if you don't forgive each other first. Giving each other a second chance won't work out if the two of you are still blaming each other for whatever went wrong. Instead, work toward holding yourself accountable for what happened and try to let go of all bad feelings.

3. Communicate: You need to be able to express how you're feeling to your old flame. You're thinking about getting back together? Make sure they're aware of that. Your ex might have unresolved feelings toward you as well and may be afraid to speak up first. Communication is key in a good relationship. Start things off right by having a genuine conversation.

How do you start dating after a long-term relationship?

Cupid's Advice:

Your last long-term relationship didn't go as planned and you've spent some time thinking about what you really want in a romance. You've stopped moping around the house, your appetite is back and you're feeling energized. Have you starting thinking about dating again? Do you already have your eye on someone new? Cupid has some tips:

1. Don't rush: It's great that you're finally over your old flame, but don't go out every night with the sole purpose of finding your next "true love." Rushing into another relationship will only cause trouble for you and whoever you have your eye on. Instead, go out on a few casual dates – keep the situation light and fun. Just enjoy the fact that you are able to spend time with another person without thinking of your ex. Besides, the best romances happen when you least expect them.

2. Hang out with friends: While you were coming to terms with your breakup, you might have lost touch with some of your friends. Call them up for a night on the town. If you feel like dancing, go to the hottest club you know. If you prefer to do some catching up with your buddies, go out to dinner at a place all of you will love. You never know, while you're making up for lost time, your soulmate may be just around the corner.

3. Don't settle: Just because you're single doesn't mean you have to cling to whoever comes your way. Keep your options open. If the next person you date isn't really what you're looking for in a partner, break things off before it gets too serious. Dating is all about meeting new people, so test the waters a little. Don't settle for the next person just because you think you won't be able to find anyone better.
