Love is sure patient! According to Usmagazine.com, Susan Boyle is having her first relationship at age 53, and we couldn't be happier for the talented lady. Boyle goes into detail about her doctor beau, "It's early days but we enjoy each other's company. We just got talking in the hotel and I thought he seemed friendly enough. He wasn't a fan but he knew who I was. He invited me out for lunch the next day, we had a nice chat and spoke about lots of things including our careers." New love is just as sweet as young love!

If you're sick of waiting, what's the best way to meet someone to date?

Cupid's Advice:

Love isn't always easy to come by, so if you are stumped on how to go about meeting someone let Cupid be your guide:

1. Try something new: Join a casual sports league, hit a singles mixer with friends, go to a bar or restaurant you've never been to before...By having new experiences you will open yourself up to an entirely new group of people, new potential suitors.
